- Litigation involving step-parent adoptions

Facilitating Step-Parent Adoptions

The most common type of adoption is the step-parent adoption. This generally occurs after a divorce or a paternity determination. When the birth parent giving up the adoptee agrees to this move, our firm can accomplish the adoption with little or no difficulty.

However, when the parent does not agree to the adoption, litigation can result. Unless a satisfactory resolution can be negotiated, the court will make the decision to terminate the parental rights of the biological parent. Ruppert & Schaefer, P.C. can conduct assertive and persuasive litigation to achieve your goal.

International, Birth Adoptions

Our firm can also take all necessary steps to register your international adoption with Indiana authorities. Ruppert & Schaefer, P.C. does not arrange international or birth adoptions. Ruppert & Schaefer, P.C. also handles all court work and documents for birth adoptions.

Our firm believes that the creation of strong families can benefit our community. Ruppert & Schaefer, P.C. will work to facilitate your adoption and protect your parental rights.
