Coronavirus Pandemic Loan Programs

In response to the Coronavirus pandemic, the President signed H.R. 748, known as the Coronavirus Aid, Relief and Economic Security Act (CARES) on March 27, 2020. The Act includes a new Paycheck Protection Program (PPP) that seeks to provide short-term cash flow through federally guaranteed loans for small businesses impacted by COVID-19. These loans will be administered by banks through the SBA 7(a) loan program. (Please see separate BeachFleischman summary of the PPP Program.) The PPP loans are distinct from the SBA’s Economic Injury Disaster Loan (EIDL) that are already available to small businesses.

Economic Injury Disaster Loan

In response to the Coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic, small business owners in all U.S. states, Washington D.C., and territories are eligible to apply for an Economic Injury Disaster Loan advance of up to $10,000. The SBA’s Economic Injury Disaster Loan program provides small businesses with working capital loans of up to $2 million that can provide vital economic support to small businesses to help overcome the temporary loss of revenue they are experiencing.

The loan advance will provide economic relief to businesses that are currently experiencing a temporary loss of revenue. Funds will be made available within three days of a successful application, and this loan advance will not have to be repaid.

Please be aware you will need to maintain documentation of the use of these funds. Any costs paid by these funds cannot be claimed under the PPP loan.
