

Specific Period of Time

This whole week the Lord has been speaking to me about waiting and God's time frame. God rarely does things according to our timeframe and that's what we struggle with. Time frame means; an extended period of time, or a specified period in which something planned takes place.

Do you see that? "Something planned to take place." Planned... Hmmmm... God's plans are not your plans, and His ways (His timing) is not your timing.

God is good, and what you are waiting for will happen because it has a planned time by Him to take place.

Are you in a place where you feel pressed up against the unknown and you have no idea what will happen next? Your waiting is not a passive loss of time. Your waiting is an active mode of faith. Your waiting is faith in motion growing your faith as you wait on Him. Your waiting has meaning even when you feel like you're standing still or haven't moved an inch.

When you wait on Him, He is well pleased because waiting means your faith is in action, and without faith it is impossible to please Him." Waiting has significant purposes (yes plural) for your life. To be specific good purposes and heavenly purposes behind the waiting. Not to mention, it has a unique way of rubbing off the rough edges of your life

Waiting brings different things into your life emotionally, spiritually and in the natural. If you try to force things to happen, you can miss out on the fullness of what He wants to do.

Waiting provides new opportunities to learn new things about Him. Waiting is difficult but, it is powerful because you are relying on God's power to get you through. After all, it's a place where you are changed and His desired results come to your life on His time frame.

Above all, when you are waiting upon God, you are drawn into a deeper place to believe in His wise and sovereign will. The Bible is full of so many truths regarding the one who waits on God. So, it is good that you should both hope and quietly wait on the Lord.

It is only when you put our hope in Christ that you can wait with confidence and know you will not be put to shame.

Which makes me wonder, if that's where the saying "Good things come to those wait."
