AZALEA TRAIL

Azalea Trail was composed as a traditional melody with a popular music progression in a choral style. The melody was written thinking of the folk music of the Eastern United States and worked with a subject that related to that music.

Flowers became that subject together with an opportunity to relate it to a most beautiful area of Louisiana.. Azaleas are so prominent in South Louisiana that there is an “Azalea Trail” which one can travel to see beautiful flowers throughout the region.

Notes on the Composer

Kevin Hilbun attained his Master's degree from the University of Louisiana at Lafayette, where he studied music composition with Dr. Quincy Hilliard. He completed his undergraduate degree (also in music composition at the University of Louisiana at Lafayette) two years prior. Kevin has explored many different forms of music, such as brass band, blues, Cajun, and Afro-Cuban as well as common-practice era (Medieval-Romantic) music. He has experience in large orchestral and band ensembles, small ensembles such as brass quintet, vocal ensembles, and traditional and popular music. All of these different genres greatly influence the way Kevin writes and thinks about music. He is currently teaching music at the middle school level.

Print Music Source is most honored to have Kevin contribute to our catalog.
