Conformance Expands Reno Headquarters and Workforce

RENO, Nev., Mar. 13, 2018 (Business Wire) – Conformance Technologies, a fast-growing provider of technology solutions, education and expertise used to manage business compliance requirements, today announced the expansion of its Reno, Nevada, headquarters facility and workforce. Conformance has ramped up IT resources to fuel development of new compliance, risk and sensitive data protection technology offerings. The company has additionally strengthened its merchant and independent sales organization (ISO) support teams as a result of strong business growth in its Payment Card Industry (PCI) compliance business, and new offerings for penetration testing and primary account number \(PAN\) scanning, as well as the award-winning InConRadar nearly real-time merchant website and risk factor monitoring service.

“The payments industry finds our products and services innovative and essential,” said Darrel Anderson, president of Conformance Technologies. “We have expanded our workforce and headquarters facility to provide top-notch service our clients and their merchant customers in the languages of their choice, as well as meet ever-increasing payments marketplace needs and demands in the areas of compliance, risk and sensitive data protection both here in the United States and overseas.”

“Extraordinary recent growth compels us to invest in future capabilities,” said Paul Nowling, senior vice president of products and technology for Conformance. “We anticipate continued strong growth for our security products and believe further technology innovations will drive our growth in 2018 and beyond.”

Additional space has been built out at the company’s headquarters located in Reno’s Meadow Wood Crown Plaza to accommodate increased staffing.
