

Ron E. Stoltz

Ron is the founder of REStoltz Advisory Services, a consultancy that focuses on the intersection of strategy, technology and policy for both business and government. His professional career was principally at Sandia National Laboratories where he was a leader in security systems engineering, program development and government relations. Ron became interested in scenario planning through the Global Business Network, where he led Sandia's participation in GBN's Worldview program. He currently provides advice to entrepreneurs from other countries who come to the US to learn and develop their skills in business start-up and market expansion. Ron has a BS, MS and PhD from MIT in Material Science and a minor in Public Policy.
