

Use this activity to help students identify the first pattern that is in the word they are going to mark. The lists are designed to be used after completing the different levels. Ex. You completed level 5, three vowel patterns, so you use the activity designed for use after completing level 5. None of the words contain patterns that have not been taught.

Use after completing level 5:

1. Put the following words on the board:

please send like upset cheese boat

Here are the answers: Please three vowel pattern, send one vowel pattern, like two vowel pattern, upset one vowel pattern, cheese three vowel pattern, boat two vowel pattern

2. How to play:

Tell the students you are going to point to a word and you want to see who can tell you the first pattern you would use to mark the word. Their choices are: three vowel pattern, two vowel pattern, one vowel pattern, consonants that go together or consonants.

Do not point to the words in order from left to right. We do not want them to know which word will be next.

Point to the word upset. Correct response is the 1 vowel pattern. The first student to get it right goes to the board and points to a word.

You select the first student to raise their hand. The student at the board must say if that is the correct response. If the response is correct, the student who gave the correct response goes to the board and points to a word. You select the student to answer. The new person at the board must say if the response is correct and then the first student must also say if the response is correct. If the response is incorrect, select another student to answer. Again the new student at the board must say if the response is correct and then the first person must say if it is correct. If correct, the student goes to the board and points to a word, if incorrect select another student and continue the process. However, if one or both of the students at the board cannot tell if the person is right or wrong, they must all sit back down. The goal will be to have all students up at the board. (Feel free to add your own way to play the game!)
