

INCREASING READINESS FOR OUR VETERANS, OUR INFRASTRUCTURE, & OUR NATIONAL PARKS

ABOUT CPI

The CPI Foundation (CPI) is a proven public/private partnership program working with the U.S. Departments of Defense and Interior, and with industry companies across the country. The program benefits the United States and its taxpayers by combining the strengths and needs of three national concerns: our military veterans, our infrastructure, and our national parks.

Helping service members avoid potential military-to-civilian transition pitfalls, CPI offers career preparation and placement for service members of all military branches during their last year of active duty service. CPI's hands-on career training program, available to service members during their last 6 months of service, completes significant structural repair, new construction, deferred maintenance, and safety & access projects in national parks and public sites; current locations are Alcatraz Island and Pearl Harbor with additional planned sites across the U.S.

Construction companies who design, build, supply, and maintain structures and infrastructure, many of which are critically in need of trades & management workforce across the country, sponsor CPI's programs and hire alumni for careers in contracting, production, transportation, sales, service, and related areas.

Who should contact CPI:

- Service members and military installations interested in the training and/or placement program
- Companies interested in hiring quality candidates at all levels
- National parks and public sites in need of a partner for construction projects/military veteran engagement

As a non-profit 501(c)3 foundation, CPI welcomes new sponsors to support the program and maximize current capacity and seeks major funding partners for expansion to additional locations.
