

Do you have any tips/ guidelines for Caribbean authors to access the millions of West Indian immigrants and their families now living in North America?

I wondered if you had any tips/ guidelines for Caribbean authors to access the millions of West Indian immigrants and their families now living in North American.

For media, you might want to try Hard Beat News, www.hardbeatnews.com, which is a Caribbean news service and Everybody's Magazine, <http://www.everybodysmag.com>, a magazine targeted to Caribbean-Americans. Organizations like the Institute of Caribbean Studies, www.icsdc.org in Washington, D.C. and the West Indian-American Day Carnival Association, <http://wiadca.com>, in Brooklyn could also be helpful.

It would also be good to contact bookstores that have particular interest in this area such as Headstart Books & Crafts, www.headstartbooks.com; Jamaicaway Books & Gifts, www.jamaicawaybooks.com; and the Color Book Gallery, www.colorbookgallery.com.
