

Are there legal problems with offering a free signed copy of my book in a contest on my web site?

Q: I want to offer a free signed copy of my book in a contest where viewers enter their names and email addresses for the drawing. Are there legal problems I should worry about? Author web sites often offer autographed copies of books as prizes for contests. Doing so should not be a problem as long as the books are yours to sell. 5/6/01