

Well, it seems to all be over but the crying in the beer part. This is being sent in while there is no announced Presidential winner yet. The handwriting seems to be on the wall at this point with all kinds of shenanigans being accused of out there. It looks bleak for Trump. I don't know if he can pull this one off. Aided by the press, the educational elites, celebrities, social media, the U.S. House of Representatives, the banks, Wall Street, the Chinese, the Russians, the Ukrainians, Antifa, BLM, Chelsea Handler, and all of his other opponents, have most likely gotten their wish. All of the good that he did will be either forgotten, undone, or falsely credited to someone else. I believe the press and social media will not stop influencing now and are unable to magically revert to the days journalism, days of Edward R. Murrow and Walter Cronkite, when they were impartial, truthful, balanced, and investigatory. They now have shown their power and their ability to control what you hear and see and their own agenda. All of your information will now be filtered by the likes of Facebook, Twitter, TV and cable networks headed by past Obama administrators or their spouses and other Democrat sponsors and donors, Don Lemon, Kimmel. and Colbert. It will probably be worse than the pre-election era. We'll see if the Harris/Pelosi administration gets 98% negative coverage every day like their predecessor did. I'm waiting to see on Inauguration Day if the Republicans will boycott the pomp and circumstance of the proceedings and initiate the impeachment process, just like the Dems did 4 years ago.

The trouble is that I don't think people actually knew what they were voting for when they picked Biden. They didn't bother to read Bernie's manifesto. The media sure as Hell didn't tell them anything. In fact, they actually hid it. Biden didn't tell them cuz he said they didn't deserve to know, and when he did manage to take a stand, there was contradictory videos of his statements from during his past employment. So, did we believe the "now Joe" or the "then Joe"? I'm not sure if Joe really knows what he's going to stand for - maybe his handlers haven't even told him, yet which could be why he seems confused all the time. Joe was right about one thing though. This will now become a "Dark Winter". And the following seasons will become even darker as soon as the Harris/Pelosi administration kicks Ol' Joe to the curb after his last drool wipe. Rush Limbaugh and Donald Trump both gone. The Libs should be dancing in the streets instead of burning them. No cops, freedom to loot!, new big screen all around!, all open borders, free everything, our economy in the shitter, Pelosi will now frame the State of the Union speeches instead of ripping them up before millions of viewers, miners and oil workers being retrained; but as what? Maybe social workers? We'll need them to replace the cops., self-imposed oil and coal shortages, jobs disappearing and wages heading lower, mass immigration influx due to free healthcare and all of the other give-a-ways for just getting here, small businesses taxed out of existence after being mortally wounded by the Chinese Plague, imposing $15.00 minimum wage (see prior hurting small business line), big business sending jobs back overseas again or to Mexico or Canada to avoid Joe's tax increases, corporations opening up shop off shore, (Joe's new taxes have to made up for from somewhere- i.e. lower wages, an assault on the Bill of Rights (limits on First and Second Amendments), gun control with Beto, assail the Supreme Court and the Senate, (they may back off on the Electoral College a bit after Joe's triumph), military cutbacks, $4 to $6 gallon gasoline, the Green New Deal devastation, less plane travel, less shipping globally, no pleasure cruising, no new gas motors, Chinese dominance worldwide (come on, man...They're great folks!..Joe Biden, 2020), your monthly electric bill skyrocketing up (Paris Accord reinstatement), wind farms and industrial solar coming (not in Flat Rock or the U.P. though, land to be destroyed elsewhere), kissing up to the Ayatollah....again, American Apology Tour 2.0, turning our back on Israel, teachers teaching that America is racist and bad from the get go, American history rewritten, more statues removed, founding fathers trashed, no civics or American pride taught, all the new regulations that the jeenyus Sandy Cortez can come up with finally utilizing her high school science project training, Midwest and southern tax dollars going to bail out California and New York's incompetency and social program fuck ups, more folks shitting in the San Francisco streets, all recreational drugs for free! (you can feel happy while shitting in the streets of San Francisco!), Socialism embraced here, no improvements in the inner cities just like under the 8 years of Obama/Biden, Platinum Plan gone, black businesses and colleges suffer, Latinos lose financial ground, all unemployment up, - the list just goes on and on. It's hard to fathom that half the country voted for this because they think it's an improvement. Really? It's extremely painful to fathom the impact that they inflicted on the rest of us because of their ignorance. OR....Mimi received 4 unrequested ballots. I received none. Did Trump really lose Michigan? We can't ask Joe. He's navel gazing in his basement. Damn, it's getting darker here already!
