

God's Way

Rachael Martin 10,10,2017

I know we can sometimes feel like nothing is going our way. Lately I've felt like yelling "stop the world, I wanna get off!" I can assure you all that I'm not depressed or giving up but things aren't always butterflies and rainbows.

I also pray that each one of our readers is touched by the hand of God with peace today in Jesus name – with clarity of mind and with the knowledge and the assurance that God is for you!

I was just thinking... did Jesus ever "get His way?"

I mean everything He did – it was because He was acting on behalf of our Father. So do you think He ever wondered (the human part that is) whether or not He would get a break or people would stop questioning His ministry? I remember one passage of scripture that He needed to find a quiet place to be because He couldn't go anywhere w/o flogs of people or the paparazzi. Now true, He did tell people to follow Him – His very reason for existence was to teach the people the truth of who He was so that we could be saved from darkness and death.

I found a website that reminds us of the words that Jesus spoke from the Bible.

It's good to remember that Jesus came not for Himself, but to fulfill a calling and to finish Father God's work – and we must do the same – run our race and continue to ask Father God if we are still on the right track – but like it or not – we aren't here to be cozy. We are here to point others to Christ – to God's WAY. Gina always says "be Jesus with skin" and I know that sometimes this is hard – but I've referred to this time and time again during my struggles and when God puts people in my path who need extra guidance. It reminds me – I'm not here to have it my way... humility is something eh?

God bless you all!
