

International Training Programme on the World Bank's New Procurement Framework

15th July to 26th July, 2019 at

Indian Institute of Management, Lucknow

The World Bank introduced New Procurement Framework (NPF) from July 1, 2016 with many significant changes in procurement procedures to be used in projects financed by the World Bank. The Indian Institute of Management, Lucknow (IIM-L), one of the most prestigious management education institutions in South Asia, invites nominations for the upcoming training programme on World Bank's New Procurement Framework. Delivered in collaboration with the World Bank, this training programme will be useful for borrowers, implementing agencies, suppliers, contractors and consultants. Faculty to conduct this training programme has been drawn from the World Bank and IIM-L and it is being coordinated by the Procurement Observatory, Uttar Pradesh, which is South Asia's first procurement observatory (<http://www.procurementobservatoryup.com/>). Training will be delivered in English.

About Lucknow: Popularly known as the seat of the Nawabi culture, Lucknow stands out as a city that takes pride in the endearing but subdued articulation of its essence and identity. Its mystical elegance and amorous ethos rarely fail to fascinate a perceptive mind. Capital of the state of Uttar Pradesh, Lucknow is known for its 'tehzeeb' (cultural refinement), hospitality, politesse, cuisines and 'Shaam-e-Awadh'. It is quite close the national capital "New Delhi" and has a well-connected airport with regular flights from domestic and international cities.
