

children will suffer behaviorally. A child cannot be expected to interact with classmates and friends in a loving, sharing manner when their minds are saturated with violence. ^{like finally} If parents do not take responsibility for the lives that they have brought into this world the way they take care of themselves, the whole world is going to suffer. A child cannot be expected to raise ^{agreement} themselves because their ^{so} called parents are "too busy" to realize the repercussions of their selfish ignorance. And the magnitude of the negative energy they have created, stimulated, and interpolated upon the hearts and souls of the children. The innocent minds that are no longer shaped by the caring hands of loving parents. The thoughtful mother and father that will soon be a distant memory in the archives of yesterday, replaced and swept beneath the rampant surge of the machine. And the children will play upon the keys of their destiny, searching the tangled web of forefathers nets that were laid. Pleading with the genetic creation of steel thought, cold emotionless and empty. "Mommy, mommy please come back, I need you, your touch, your warmth, your guidance and love, please mommy please, please come back to me!" She will cry but her tears are forever vanquished, falling into the eternal darkness of the Controlling, Altering, Delirium of the Cathode Baby-sitter.

THE SCREEN

Joseph 1997

Well-focused on your themes, ideas Joseph, but sometimes
too much of a diatribe
against parents
instead of a factual
presentation of information and statistics. Arguments that are "cute" do
not work very well