

2017 Atlantic Challenge Cup Streaming is Live and Free for Everyone!

With the third staging of the Atlantic Challenge Cup quickly approaching, the European Pocket Billiard Federation announced today that the entire event will be streamed live via the EPBF Facebook page. "With the event scheduled to begin on Wednesday, July 5, it is great news that everybody anywhere will be able to see this great event unfold," said IBPF President David Morris. "And for those of you who do not use the social media giant, you can still watch this event live and free via our partner Kozoom. Just log onto kozoom.com, register and you'll be there with us."

Johnny Archer (the Scorpion) will be captain for team USA and he'll be battling his wits against the world 9-ball champion Albin Ouschan who will be team Europe's captain.

The event takes place at Sportpark Klagenfurt in Austria between the 5th and 8th of July. The best six players from Europe and America will battle it out to capture the third edition of the Atlantic Challenge cup. Europe has won the first two editions, 11-9 and 11-4 but the Americans will be out to avenge those defeats and the appointment of Johnny Archer shows just how much the Americans want to turn this around.

Stay tuned to AtlanticChallengeCup.com for continuous updates on the 2017 event.

Press release issued by the EPBF & BCA.