

Certitude vs. Plenitude

Certitude sits;
plenitude flows.
Certitude knows;
plenitude goes
for the unknown.

Certitude is a box;
plenitude is a passage.
Certitude gets stuck;
plenitude spills over.

Certitude settles for
"either ... or."
Plenitude promises
"both ... and."

Certitude fears
a challenge;
plenitude takes
a chance.
Certitude seeks
safety;
plenitude admires
adventure.

Certitude calculates;
plenitude accumulates.
Certitude is frugal;
plenitude is bountiful.

Certitude stays
on the edge;
plenitude searches
the center.
Certitude skirts
the surface;
plenitude plumbs
the depths.

The prime goal
for many
is to be fully certain.
A more worthy aim,
however,
is to be certainly full!

© Msgr. Walter Niebrzydowski
November 25, 1991
Fr-Walter@nyc.rr.com
www.fatherwaltersparish.org