WHAT ARE LAWS AND RECOMMENDATIONS OF THE CREATION ?

by Jimmy Chen / November 2017

For someone who first encounters this terminology, it could bring up a concept or thought that is unknown and mysterious, or something leading to the spiritual or even something divine. But what is it really and how can it be explained so that it can be seen for what it truly is so that it does not lead to the unknown and ungraspable?

According to the spiritual teaching, the word 'Creation' can be used synonymously with the term 'Universal Consciousness' which can be a bit easier to grasp and less likely to be seen as something divine or godly if someone has a religious background. 'Universal' obviously means related to the universe, and universe means the world in which we live in, including the planets, stars, galaxies, life forms, etc. which are known or even unknown to us. According to the spiritual teaching, it even includes the more fine material, fine fluidal, finest or spiritual energies which are still largely unknown to us. It could also even include the other non-material levels or belts (7 belts of the universe in total). However, often trying to explain these unknown or undiscovered parts of the universe is difficult since it refers to something still unknown and ungraspable because these things have not yet been discovered and cannot yet be confirmed or proven.

But how can these laws and recommendations of the Creation be followed if the Creation or Universal Consciousness is not yet fully understood? The answer is that no one can really fully understand the Creation or the Universe/Universal Consciousness because it is in fact so gigantic and immense that for a person to fully understand it, one would need to visit all parts of the universe and see everything from the pure material to the finest spiritual energy levels, which is most likely impossible. Of course the purpose is not to confuse and lead the ones encountering this term to believe in something yet unknown, but instead the intention is to give a guideline in which the people can live accordingly or follow so that a more beneficial and favourable outcome can result.

So if one wanted to start with something that they can relate to in terms of the laws and recommendations of the Creation, one could start with examples in which they can understand, e.g. a law of the Creation or Universe can simply be a physical law, e.g. the law of gravity where a physical mass is attracted to another large physical mass, e.g. a ball will always fall down to the ground, or the law of freezing point, e.g. water will freeze or melt if the ambient temperature is below or above a certain unit of measurement. From this standpoint one can realise that these laws are something universal since it happens every time and anywhere. Following the same logic one can begin to search for patterns and processes that are constant and hold true anywhere and anytime, so therefore, one can deduce further to laws that govern the more fine fluidal processes, e.g. the consciousness processes of thoughts, feelings, actions, etc., which are thoroughly explained in the spiritual teaching, as explained by Billy. As an example, a consciousness process such as thinking generates a thought, which is an energy that brings about a certain result both within the human being and outside in the environment, and will shape these according to the contents of the thought, whether it be negative or positive, good or bad. If these thought processes which are explained by the spiritual teaching can be observed and hold true anywhere and at any time, then these must be a law of the Creation or law of the Universe.

As an example, these are laws of the Creation, both known and unknown or yet to be discovered.

Physical Laws

Law of gravity, law of thermodynamics, law of photosynthesis, law of electricity, law of electromagnetism, etc.

Fine Fluidal Laws

Laws that govern processes within the human beings, e.g. thinking, feeling, thought boomerang effect, forming of the psyche, meditation, etc. or laws that govern fine fluidal processes in the environment, astrological effects, fluidal energies, levitation, teleportation, etc.

Spiritual Laws

Laws that govern spiritual processes, e.g. reincarnation of the spirit-form, spirit telepathy, spirit teleportation, etc.

A law of the Creation is in fact just something constant and true at all times. Therefore, if one follows or lives according to the laws and recommendations of the Creation as is often recommended by the spiritual teaching, then he or she would really just be following truth and reality, or something that is constant and permanent for all times. A simple example would be, if one chose to follow or ignore the law of gravity while they are at an edge of a cliff, they would either stay safe or inevitably get hurt by walking off the cliff. Or deducing even further to the more fine fluidal processes, e.g. if one chose to continually cherish good, balanced thoughts, or bad and unbalanced thoughts, inevitably good or bad results will occur internally within him or herself and externally in the environment. And finally on a spiritual level, e.g. if one chose to recognise or ignore the law of reincarnation (although it would still occur nevertheless), one would heed the continual evolution of the consciousness and spirit or be fearful of bodily death and live only for the material values alone. Therefore, it is more favourable to follow the law of the Creation, respectively, the truth, and less favourable to ignore the laws of the Creation. Following this logic, the spiritual teaching is in fact really trying to explain creational laws or universal laws, respectively, truth, so that one can make an intelligible decision for a more favourable outcome.

In a time like ours, many laws are still largely unknown, especially the fine-fluidal and spiritual laws and therefore it is very easy to make the wrong decisions regarding these processes. One of which is the law that govern the processes of thinking, thoughts and feelings within the human being, which has been largely ignored and has already led to catastrophic results. Or the laws that come together to govern the holding capacity of a planet, both on a material level, e.g. energy consumption, food consumption, regeneration of resources, etc. and fine-fluidal and spiritual level, e.g. consciousness balance, consciousness evolution, etc. which when ignored leads to catastrophic results such as the depletion of resources, weakening of the consciousness, stagnation of evolution, devaluing of people, wars, hatred, etc.

Therefore it is more favourable if the laws and recommendations of the Creation or Universal Consciousness are followed as repeatedly explained in the spiritual teaching. As stated in the spiritual teaching, "Honour the Creation as you honour, respect and love your father and mother", which can indeed sound a bit religious if the word 'Creation' is understood as something divine or godly, but if seen from the perspective where 'Creation' is the Universal Consciousness which manifests the laws and recommendations in the universe in which we live in, then really this means to honour, respect and love the truth, which means to be connected with the truth and live accordingly so that a favourable outcome can result which sustains evolution at all levels, and pertaining to our times, so that a destruction of the environment or planet does not result and a more peaceful and harmonious world full of freedom and love can prevail.

ON ANARCHY: SOME ADVICE TO MY SON

by Michael Uyttebroek / November 2017

Hello Rigel...I've seen people discussing anarchy in connection with block chain and the by-passing of the greedy banks and power structures. In my opinion we need true democracy (like the Plejaren), where when there is a decision to be reached everyone has a vote (immediately)...and I think that they need to have consensus. If one disagrees, they state their reason and the issue is re-examined. Each person has a voice and is a determining factor in their system. The problem we have on Earth is that people feel powerless. Their vote doesn't benefit them or the planet. As stated above, it is a hierarchy and the rich get richer, the corporations disregard the environment (money is the motivator), and power is held in the hands of the few. Of course this is unsustainable. Sooner or later there is a revolution against this injustice and this can be called anarchy...or basically going against the status quo. Cause and effect. Upheaval of the old structures is what the age of Aquarius calls for. This will entail much strife and war. At some point in the distant future, there will be no need for money and people will work for the common good of all (including nature, the trees, flora, fauna, oceans, etc.). The goal is evolution...living in harmony. Even if it appears like chaos and randomness in nature, there is order and purpose. Everything is connected. We are all connected. The problem is that we do not think ourselves as a global community or even a humanity community (which stretches beyond our planet). We think we are free and independent to do whatever we please without consequence and live for our personal gain with disregard to those around us that are not part of our family/party/gang/social status/side, etc. Change will come with each individual changing themselves. We are all powerful in that sense. Of course with this comes responsibility.

THE MOUNTAIN CLIMBERS

by Daniel Cooper / November 10, 2017

It is often said that in our society, the honest people tend to fall through the cracks and cannot make it to the top and that for now life is a long arduous journey for them. This is partly true but only on some levels. In actual fact we're already on top of the mountain now and sharing that space together in each others company. The difference is that we're hidden above the clouds tucked away on a mountainside. People can't see us from the valley floor until they make the climb themselves above the clouds and explore it for themselves. Climbing isn't easy which is why they have to do it completely on their own effort and why they would be annoyed if someone tried to coerce them to do it.

There are some negative interests up the mountain as well who know about us but don't want our presence known to those in the valley and who continuously generate artificial clouds over the valley to obscure us from vision. But word will spread and people will become wise to the fact that the view is better after the climb. The sun shines up here above the clouds. The days are longer as the sun rises earlier in the morning and sets later in the evening. The view is better and eventually the valley people will inevitably chase away those who wanted to keep them ignorant and in the dark. This will take time but it will be as inevitable as a baby wanting to find freedom by crawling and walking for his/ herself.

The others who know about us but who wish to control those below them have knowledge but not wisdom. Their desire to control the valley people will be their own undoing as they are greatly outnumbered by endless time and the peoples endless desire for improvement. These slave owners will fail inevitably no matter how clever they appear to be in this current time and no matter what technology they have to push back. The more attention the slave drivers attract to themselves through their desperate efforts to prevent people from leaving the valleys, the more curious the valley people will become as to what goodness is being hidden from them. Creations laws have made it so that the valley people win by default not through our efforts or the efforts of their suppressors, but in the end through never ending time and their never ending desire for improvement of life for themselves. Each human contains this desire. It is unstoppable. It can be slowed by never stopped.

Through these unchanging factors, the wise ones on the mountain have already won the game. Time must now simply take its inevitable course as we watch and wait patiently for everybody to wake up to life above the clouds. The climb is treacherous and difficult for all who venture and all kinds of weather and hampering are routine, but for those who really want it, they'll do it no matter what and they will weather the storms and so forth in order to see the view from the top. Meanwhile we continue our work, our searches for ways to create harmony, for truth and understanding.

“THE HUMAN BEING CAN GROW IN SORROW, GRIEF AND PAIN....”

An essay translation from “Das Leben richtig leben” (The Life Correctly Lived) by Billy Meier/FIGU Switzerland 2014
Translated with permission: Catherine Mossman, Tiny Township, Ontario/October 2017

This book is a compilation of essays on the theme of how to live one’s life correctly on a vast array of topics that Billy wrote between April 2010 and October 2011. This is one of those essays, found on pages 8-10, written in May 2010, on the subject of the value that suffering and pain has in helping us to evolve and grow, entitled: An Leid, Trauer und Schmerz kann der Mensch wachsen....

An Leid, Trauer und Schmerz kann der Mensch wachsen.... The human being can grow in sorrow, grief and pain....

Leid, Trauer und Schmerz fallen immer als kleine oder grosse Störung in des Menschen Leben ein und isolieren ihn in mancherlei Weisen, und dann geschieht, ist von Mensch zu Mensch verschieden.

So mancher fragt sich dabei, ob er im Leid und Schmerz in der Trauer nicht einfach allem standhalten müsse.

Und es kommt in manchem die Frage auf, ob er den vielfältigen Versuchen, sich selbst zu betäuben, nachgeben und sich dagegen zur Wehr setzen soll, vielleicht mit Drogen, Medikamenten oder Alkohol.

Doch was soll wirklich getan werden, um dem Leid und Schmerz zu begegnen?

Jedenfalls, so gross und mächtig das Leid, die Trauer und der Schmerz auch immer sein mögen, kann kein Mensch weder von all seinem Leid noch vor sich selbst einfach davonlaufen.

Und genau darauf muss er sich einstellen, und zwar indem er schon von Kindheit an durch die Anweisungen, die Erziehung und Belehrungen des Eltern oder sonstigen Erziehenden lernt, mit Leid, Trauer und Schmerz umzugehen.

Dabei muss auch gelernt dass eigentlich Beunruhigung im Leben auszuschliessen ist, so auch nicht in bezug auf Leid, Trauer und Schmerz.

Es muss im Leben des Menschen immer alles arbeiten und dieses Arbeiten muss so sein, dass alle Kräfte werden und sich andere und neue Energien und Kräfte entfalten können.

Das Ganze muss gehandhabt werden und geschehen, dass der Mensch wieder bei sich selbst heimisch wird.

Das aber bedeutet, dass er viel, sehr viel lernen und verarbeiten muss, um es nachvollziehen zu können.

Doch wie ist das diesbezüglich tatsächlich mit einzelnen?

Was

Was weiss der Mensch der heutigen Zeit doch alles und bleibt sich trotzdem selbst völlig fremd und rätselhaft, weil er sich wahrheitlich selbst nicht kennt.

Und weil ihm diese Kenntnis ebenso fehlt wie auch das Wissen, wie er seine Gedanken und Gefühle führen, hegen und pflegen muss, vermag er auch seine gedanklich-gefühlsmässigen und psychischen Regungen nicht zu beherrschen und folgedem auch nicht zu kontrollieren.

Das aber führt dazu, dass er auch Leid, Trauer und Schmerz nicht verarbeiten kann was daher kommt, dass er irrig alles nach aussen wendet, während das Ganze sich jedoch nach innen richtet, innen arbeitet und sich also innerlich ergibt.

Und nur innerlich können Leid, Trauer und Schmerz verarbeitet, verstanden und nachvollzogen werden, um eine Beendigung zu finden.

Suffering, grief and pain always fall as small or great disturbances in the life of a human, and isolate him/her in many ways, and how that then occurs, is different from person to person.

Many ask themselves therefore, whether in grief, he/she must not simply endure everything in suffering and pain.

And in many, the question arises whether he/she is deadening the manifold attempts to stun, surrender and defend themselves against it, maybe with drugs, medicines or alcohol.

But what is really to be done in order to deal with suffering and pain?

In any case, however great and mighty sorrow, grief, and pain may be, no human can run away from all their suffering, nor from themselves.

And this is exactly what he/she has to prepare him/herself for, by learning from childhood through the instructions, upbringing and teachings of his parents or other educators to deal with suffering, grief and pain.

Thereby, it must also be learned that anxiety in life is to be ruled out, thus also in regard to sorrow, grief and pain.

In the life of the human one must always work through everything and this work must be such that all strengths grow and other and new energies and powers are able to unfold.

The entirety must be managed and effected, in order that the human being is at home with him/herself again.

This means, however, that he/she has to learn and come to terms with a great, great deal, in order to be able to fully understand it.

But how does this actually apply with the individual?

How is it that the human being of today knows so much and yet, despite this, remains fully unknown and inscrutable to him/herself because he/she truly does not know him/herself.

And because he/she lacks this knowledge, as well as the knowledge of how one must guide, nurture and tend ones thoughts and feelings, then they are not able to master their thought-feeling based, or psychical impulses and as a consequence do not control them.

Thereby that leads to him/her not being able to handle suffering, grief and pain, which comes from the fact that he/she wrongly turns everything outwards, whereas the entirety, however, is directed inwards, works on the inside and thus the results manifest inwardly.

Bei Leid, Trauer und Schmerz darf nicht einfach in diesen innegehalten werden denn es muss immer ein Weitergehen erfolgen, sei es durch eine Tat oder durch ein Wort, durch einen Gedanken oder ein Gefühl.

Also muss der Mensch, wenn er von Leid, Trauer und Schmerz getroffen wird, immer einen Atemzug über sich selbst hinausgehen, um alles richtig zu verstehen und sich von all dem zu befreien, was ihn leidvoll macht und ihn traurig und schmerzlich belastet.

Und geht er diesen Weg, dann geht er den Weg der eigenen Befreiung, die ihn zu einem ander und tieferen Leben führt.

Natürlich ist es für sehr viele Menschen sehr schwierig, über alle diese Dinge zu reden, Fragen zu stellen und auch nützliche Antworten zu erhalten.

Sehr viele leben hinter einem Schleier, hinter dem sie die Worte überhaupt nicht erreichen können, die hilfreich an sie gerichtet sind.

Und wenn etwas zu ihnen durchdringt, denn fragt es sich, was es überhaupt noch ist, das zu ihnen durchdringt, und ob nicht aus blankem Unverstehen gegen aufklärende und tröstende Worte einfach Bedenken geäußert und wirre Einwände vorgebracht werden.

Viele denken dabei, dass andere gut reden hätten, denn sie selbst müssten ja nicht mit Leid, Trauer und Schmerz fertig werden.

Das aber ist eine irrige Annahme, denn grundsätzlich sind ausnahmslos alle Menschen davon betroffen.

Dabei fragt es sich nur, wie der einzelne alles sieht, verarbeitet und verkraftet, oder eben nur schwer oder überhaupt nicht verarbeitet und nicht verkraftet.

Wahrlich sind dabei nur Verstand und Vernunft gefragt und der Wille, die effective Wirklichkeit und deren Wahrheit zu erkennen, zu verstehen und diese nachvollziehen zu können.

Jede Beunruhigung, jedes Leid, jede Trauer und jeder Schmerz, wovon der Mensch getroffen wird, ist für jeden auch eine Botschaft, um aus allem in vielfacher Weise zu lernen, auch in bezug auf die Lebensgestaltung und die Lebensführung.

So sind Leid, Trauer und Schmerz auch immer Botschaften des Lebens, um zu begegnen und es richtig und korrekt zu führen.

Und solche Botschaften treffen jeden einzelnen, wobei es nur darauf ankommt, die Botschaft richtig zu entschlüsseln.

So kann in dieser Hinsicht mit gutem Gewissen gesagt werden, dass jene Menschen, die Leid, Trauer und Schmerz tragen, sich trotzdem glücklich schätzen können, denn wenn sie den richtigen Weg des Verarbeitens, Verstehens und des ihre eigene des Leid-, Trauer- und Schmerzvollen gehen, dann werden sie durch Mensch Kraft aus sich selbst heraus getröstet.

Dadurch aber verwandelt sich der derart, dass er durch seine eigenen Bemühungen und Erkenntnisse a ordnung bringt und dem Leben wieder mit und Frohsein begegnet.

And only inwardly can suffering, sorrow and pain be processed, understood and comprehended in order to find an ending.

Suffering, grief and pain must not simply be stopped because there must always follow a continuation, be it through an action or through a word, through a thought or a feeling.

So, when he/she is hit by suffering, grief and pain, one must always take the time in order to understand everything properly and to free oneself from all that makes them suffer and that which burdens them with sorrow and pain.

And if he/she takes this path, then they go on the path of their own liberation, which leads them to a different and deeper life.

Of course it is very difficult for many people to talk about all these things, to pose questions and also to get useful answers.

A lot of people live behind a veil, behind which they are not able to reach the words at all which can be helpful to them. And if something penetrates through to them, then he/she asks him/herself what else is there, that is getting through to him/her, and whether misunderstandings about explanatory and comforting words are simply not expressed out of sheer misunderstanding, and whether confusing objections are raised.

What is more, many think that others talk easily because they themselves have not had to cope with suffering, grief and pain.

But this is an erroneous assumption, for, without exception, all humans are affected by it.

Thereby, only to be asked is how the individual sees, processes and copes with everything, or just only difficultly processes or does process or cope at all.

Truly, only intellect and reason are needed, and the will to recognise, to understand, the effective reality and its truth and to be able to comprehend this.

Every worry, every suffering, every grief, and every pain which affects the human beings is also a message for everyone to learn from all things in many different manners, also in terms of one's lifestyle and one's conduct in life.

Thus, suffering, grief and pain are always messages of life in order to meet and lead it rightly and correctly.

And such messages affect every single person, whereby it is only a matter of deciphering the message correctly.

Thus, in this respect, it can be said with a clear conscience that those human beings who bear suffering, grief, and pain can nevertheless consider themselves fortunate, for when they go on the right path of the processing, understanding, and of their own suffering, mourning, and pain, then they will be comforted by themselves through human power.

As a result, however, through his/her own efforts and cognitions he/she transforms him/herself in such a manner that he/she brings order and rejoices with life and joy again.

WHOLE LIFE EXPO / NOVEMBER 6-8, 2017 / TORONTO / FIGU-FLCA INFORMATION BOOTH
A BRIEF REPORT

by Michael Uyttebroek

The overall feeling after having done our third Whole Life Expo, is that the experience was quite positive. Although our actual location was nestled between psychics, ascended masters from Sirius and others, our 'vibe' was quite distinct for those who were really drawn to us. On several occasions there were people who stayed at our booth for over an hour, leafing through our books and booklets or engaging in dialogue on spiritual topics. On Sat. afternoon, I did a lecture presentation for approximately 35 people on 'Reincarnation - an overview' and capped it off with some information pertaining to fluidal energies. Many people were especially interested in burial vs. cremation, several of which, came back to our booth later that day or on Sun. for further clarification about the process of back-connecting with fluidal energies, its purpose and how this occurs or not, as in the case of cremation. New visuals were created for the Samsung displays: catch phrases flashed up with colourful background images or Billy's UFO pictures. Phrases such as "Is vegetarianism healthy?, Have you ever considered reincarnation?, Transplants...are they harmless?, Is it logical to assume that we are the only human beings in this universe?", "Approx. 100 million new mouths to feed each year!", " All UFO photos taken before Photoshop existed", etc. However, the main thing that caught people's eyes was the large UFO posters from SSSC. Initially we only had one on display on the tripod stand in the back corner of our booth, however when we brought it out to the front of the booth and then added with the second poster added below leaning on the stand, it beckoned some sort of response due to its sheer presence. Some would simply laugh it off as some sort of a hoax and walk away while for others, it was impetus to find out more. And so it went, all sorts of people with all varying attitudes, dispositions views and opinions. Only few were open enough to be able to recognise the magnitude of this occurrence and the broad scope of information that FIGU has at its disposal. Some took our cards and told us that they would look into it while others simply wanted to tell us about their own UFO experiences and were not really looking beyond that. Still others had their intellectual knowledge almost completely block them from seeing the facts, thinking that they knew better, or that our point of view towards overpopulation was too extreme, that the Earth would take care of itself or that the pictures looked as though they were created with Photoshop, etc. There were also those with whom a deeper connection was made, with like-minded seekers striving to find out the nature of reality, striving for the truth and who recognised the situation on Earth as it really is, etc. Meeting and talking with those people at this event made it all worthwhile, for we could take the time to connect with them in a sincere and honest manner, making it a valuable learning experience for all of us. I must add that age was not a factor nor was gender. Everyone, from seniors to younger persons, one in particular who was 11 years old, grilled us for well over an hour and listened to our stories and information, deeply interested and soaking in the information like a sponge.

CATHERINE WITH THE NEW PEACE MEDITATION PYRAMIDS

FROM THE DESK OF THE FLCA SECRETARY / OUR CORRESPONDENCE PAGES

by Catherine Mossman / FLCA Secretary

EMAIL CORRESPONDENCE #1: "THOSE HAVING DOUBTS"

It is good to be critical, to doubt, to express, to reach out for feedback... a reader did just that:

In August, 2017 one of our Canadian readers wrote to us at our Contact Us section on our website: Hello Catherine. I was just wondering if you ever struggle with doubts about it all, and how you deal or have dealt with that? Just about it all, you know? There's so much material and debate about this and that that it's hard to get to the truth of it. It's not out of the realm of possibility that this is a hoax. And nearly all people would say outright that this is crazy and bs. But I also think it's not out of the realm of possibility that it's real and I find deep meaning and truth and a sense of purpose that seems to be missing in this life in the material. I want it to be real, but I get caught up in doubt. Over the past 10 years I've been shifting my perception of life and reality essentially and if it's a hoax that's a frightening thought, you know? Just struggling with faith for lack of a better term.

Answer: Hello [name withheld], First of all it is good to question, to doubt, to be critical about such things... there is so much controversy and so many nay-sayers out there that I'm sure your head is spinning, however, in all honesty you really have to listen to your small inner voice about all of this and continue your own studying and learning in the manner that works for you, and decide what is logical and what isn't. As you said yourself: you find 'deep meaning, truth and sense of purpose' in the material.

It is Creation itself that is pushing you and all of us to strive to better ourselves, and to move forward in our evolution. Innately we all are born with this striving for the truth; whether we listen to it and act upon it is another. Eventually, we will all get there and find the inner freedom it brings to us....and not necessarily in this life, for sure... it is an ongoing and ever unfolding process of untold reincarnations of our spirit-forms.

Is the FIGU material the only place to find it? Of course not.... Creation gives lessons everyday and is all around, if we are open to seeing them, from the micro-universe to the macro-universe. However, having a 'truth-bringer', as I like to refer to Billy as, living amongst us who is wiser and is freely sharing his wisdom in written, understandable form, to help us move out of our un-freedom is a BIG hand up. No other human living on this planet has the information that can be found here to aide one in striving for freedom, truth, harmony. And the source for all this information, Billy, is not asking for supplication, or anything in return. He does it from his own sense of purpose and responsibility.

There are many, and will continue to be for some time into the future, those who think they know better, and thrive on negativity, etc., who yearn to get up on their podiums and pronounce upon this case, they write books, get a lot of attention, go on speaking circuits, what have you. They are all too happy and eager to heap the Meier UFO stuff in with all the other purported contactees, abductees, Pleidian channelers, etc., etc, none of whom offer the evidence that Meier has, the photos, footage, metal samples, sound recordings never mind the information, books, contact reports. Have any of these people investigated personally, or frankly, are interested in looking into the information behind all of it? They are not at the point in their evolution where they are looking for answers from within and are still hugely invested in the material world, and the material consciousness, egotistical pursuits, etc., without acknowledging or wondering at all as to what IT is that is actually granting them a life in the first place, and what that purpose might be. And there are exponentially more people who are NOT in active pursuit of truth and true freedom, which can only come from within, than those who are.

Religions, materialism, and the sheer number of humans living in dire circumstances keeps them either bound in ideological chains and turned away from inner truths, or desperately fighting to just survive wars/famines/climate disasters, etc. We are so lucky to be living in relative comfort and can actually turn our attention to the existential, so to speak, don't you think?

I can only speak from my own perspective of course; everyone would have a different manner of answering/ addressing someone else's doubts/ questioning. I've been over to Switzerland about 8 times now, met Billy and the people working and studying around him. They are all hard working, modest, normal people. Working their jobs and volunteering their little spare time to help with what needs to be done to get books published, and maintain the grounds, etc., in addition to their own writing, reflecting and studying of the material. What drives them is a sense of personal responsibility to be a help with this important work. I, and others in our group, also feel this responsibility, and to wit, learning German, studying the spiritual teaching lessons, reading the books, working on translations all have been of huge indispensable benefit to us all. Before finding this material it was a lifelong search for truth, and frankly I've found that nothing, and no other human, holds a candle to Billy and what he has to convey... the knowledge and insights just keep coming. To me the UFO part is of the least interest actually! (And that's where a majority of the UFO/ conspiracy guys like to keep their focus, incidentally.)

My recommendation to you would be to stay with the material and keep a critical mind about it all, and listen to yourself, rather than others who are largely ill-informed and prefer to believe in hearsay, rather than going to the source. That way you'll be able to decide for yourself whether this is of continued value or not. Ultimately you are a free-willed human being and master of your own destiny of course!

One other thing I want to say: to be in the small community of like-minded ones we have here in our GTA group is absolutely priceless as well. We can talk about things openly. I know how hard it can be to be the only one out there, no one to talk to, no one who understands. maybe you can come down and meet us sometime at one of our public meetings. Hope this helped, and apologies if this was too long-winded!

Regards, Catherine

EMAIL CORRESPONDENCE #2: "SOME SUGGESTIONS FOR FLCA"

In October and November of this year, we had a number of emails from a reader wanting to be helpful with some points about our website. In particular some tips about how our page wasn't displaying properly was helpful and we were able to adjust it accordingly. We thought this could be good to publish in the event others may have had similar thoughts, or questions about why we've done the website the way it is, etc. The correspondent has given permission for us to publish his/her comments, however, they wished to remain anonymous.

We welcome comments on this through our 'contact us' page.

Correspondent: I know I have said this before. Its only appropriate to place the native language of the people your addressing on the right hand side if its in an arabic speaking country, because they read from the left. It looks to the reader as politically motivated but importantly that FIGU is primarily concerned with addressing German speakers when that is not true is it, so it has an alienating effect. The world language isn't German its north American English, its pretending which is why I said it looks politically motivated to a reader.

This was previously clarified to this reader when they had similar comments about how they surmise the world could be seeing our keeping German on the left of our documents as politically deviant, etc. The following is from the previous email exchange:

Catherine: "It is mandated by FIGU Switzerland, that all material be put down as it was conveyed in the original German language, alongside the language of the country at hand. This is to be the case in all countries, i.e. Japan will have German/ Japanese, Norway will have German/ Norwegian, etc..... As it is impossible to properly and correctly translate this material into other languages 100%... and to prevent further manipulations and misrepresentations in future, we are always going to keep the original German. No nefarious motives, or subterfuge here at all, not that we think that is what you're necessarily alluding to of course! But that being said it is highly recommended that one learns German if one really wants to read this material correctly."

The balance of this report is excerpted from the latest email exchange:

Catherine: If people cannot see what is important in this vast body of information and get hung up on what looks 'suspiciously' like there are ulterior political motives at work, then they will move on, that is fine.

Correspondent: I recommend scraping the FIGU in a nutshell in prime position and instead making a welcome to FIGU, please, welcome, hello, nice to meet you, please come in, make yourself comfortable. Make FIGU canada the first FIGU group which demonstrates a real working knowledge of hospitality. If you're going to take peoples hard earned money the first thing to do is to welcome them successfully. Youtube video which offers friendship and secondly outlines everything that FIGU is about.

Its all about using the standard and agreements that are normal in the world so I recommend the images on the ca.figu page, I think should be replaced with a youtube video instead, because that is the normal placeholder position on a website to do that, to introduce yourselves, set out what your doing and in doing that you need not say what your not doing, but only if the production values are going to be at the standard expected. It should have some world and maps built into the video including a branding logo, it should be in HD, conform to all known standards, it should ideally introduce who and what FIGU is and it has to be under 4 minutes while setting the right tone.

Catherine: By putting FIGU in a nutshell at the forefront, makes very clear what we are and are not. We are not here for popularity or to make friends. As Meier has said truth can be harsh, and it is not something to be dressed up with flowers and soft words.

Your referring to the need for a 'branding logo' in addition to such terms as 'production values', 4 minute sound bites, flowing imagery, parting people from their 'hard earned money', etc., to my perception, is presupposing we should be following a business model for the 'success' of our site? It must be made clear that we are a federal not-for-profit group, everyone works voluntarily, our goals are not geared towards business ends, at all. Though we have some books, that we and other English speaking FIGU groups/ people have been able to arduously translate, our end goal is not to sell stuff, nor convince anyone of anything, nor missionize for that matter.

Correspondent: The MediaWiki of www.futureofmankind.co.uk is the only website as far as I am concerned which uses the correct tools to present information. There are mechanics inside the MediaWiki system which have been specially designed for the purpose. I am reluctant really to say what FIGU does falls short, but it either does or doesn't really it cannot be both ways simultaneously.

The creationtruth website, I know this is not a FIGU canada thing and that its administrated from elsewhere. But to me this simply has to be renamed, the word creational is a very dangerous word to use unless its used appropriately. Allow me to explain why; Atheists and scientists are the only valueable individuals FIGU will ever in a million years come across, because they'll exclusively be the individuals who get any of it. Creationism is a very dangerous wording that risks alienating the only individuals FIGU will ever encounter worth any time. Another way of saying the same thing is that the website creationtruth immediately depletes its goal before its even begun realising its goal.

Catherine: We cannot speak for the Creational Truth group, they are their own entity, free to present themselves as they see fit. Feel free to contact them directly should you feel so moved. And yes James Moore, who's the creator of the future of mankind site, is a friend of ours, and his site is a great resource as is the Creational Truth's.

In particular the information at the crux of the matter is of a spiritual nature, and indeed what 'Creation' is, is a part of that too. Those who are familiar with FIGU, and who take the time to investigate, know that 'creationism' or 'creationism' as you termed it, has nothing to do with Creation, and creational truth. Those who react in a knee-jerk manner to such will not stick around and that is fine too. Everyone is a free human being to decide for themselves.

Correspondent: All about using the standards and standard of agreements that is already known and already understood in the world. As soon as FIGU differs in the way it does normal things then its immediately catapulted out of the normal framework where it then is ignored. For FIGU to be known and understood by as many as possible in the world it has to be accessible to those individuals. The professional industries which deal with these matters know about these things, the reason we know that is because they would not exist if not because they'd be forgotten about or never noticed.

Catherine: I don't know how much you know about FIGU, it seems you have some interest due to your knowledge of various FIGU sites, so it should be quite clear to you that we are by no means a mainstream group. Most people on this planet, we already know, have no interest in true spiritual matters that demand self-responsibility to learn, and won't have interest for at least another 800 years. But those few who do seek this knowledge, will find our site or have already found our site, and are glad we are here and making this information available.

Correspondent: The vast diversity of subjects needs to be written down properly. FIGU is clearly not about UFO's and the fringe sciences is it? If anything these subjects are the least applicable subjects FIGU applies to. So write it down properly, present it properly. Any time there is an opportunity for confusion you need to have your executive editor step in and explain that there is a disparity there between normal peoples consciousness and what we are trying to explain.

Catherine: The Meier history and entire case is also very much to do with his ongoing contacts and historical relationships, with ET humans, who travel/travelled here from the depths of space, in what people on Earth call UFO's. And in some of the contacts he covers material of a scientific nature as well as hereto unknown spiritual sciences and such phenomenon not yet known to our Earth scientists, so yes, some people may refer to it as 'fringe' because it certainly is not talking about what our mainstream scientists know at this point in time. The name FIGU is a German acronym that indeed translates to: 'Free community of Interests for Border (read 'frontier') and Spiritual Sciences and Ufological Studies'.

The original German written material is that of Billy Meier's, and how it is written is his decision, a lot of what can be misconstrued as not being 'properly written' is the bad Google translations, and the like, floating around (not everything in English on our site, is our own translations, btw), and terminologies that are frankly impossible to translate. There are approximately 54 books that Meier has written, most of which are not yet translated, and thousands of contacts, not yet properly translated... and that is why the original Swiss German is, and always will be, kept at the forefront. There is no 'executive editor', we are literally a handful of people doing this in our spare time. And hence, better translations are going to take 100's of years to get done, due to the small numbers of people who already are fluent in German and English, and most importantly, are cognizant of the FIGU material or are native English speakers who trouble themselves to learn German in order to do so.
