

Coexistence vs. Proexistence

Coexistence is living
with one another;
proexistence is living
for each other.

Coexistence is usually a solution
to a problem;
proexistence is the ideal
of a challenge.

Coexistence is the minimum required
for society;
proexistence is the maximum desired
for community.

Coexistence results
from a stalemate;
proexistence creates
a soul-mate.

Coexistence, therefore,
fosters unity;
while proexistence
expresses charity.

So, both in international affairs
and interpersonal relationships, why settle for
coexistence,
when we are called to
proexistence?

© Msgr. Walter Niebrzydowski

July 6, 1997

Fr-Walter@nyc.rr.com

www.fatherwaltersparish.org