

International Law and Litigation for U.S. Judges

Sunday, November 12 – Tuesday, November 14, 2006

Thurgood Marshall Federal Judiciary Building, Washington, D.C.

Federal Judicial Center

American Society of International Law

International Law and Litigation for U.S. Judges

Federal Judicial Center • American Society of International Law

Panel: Law in the Domestic Courts of Other Nations

Monday, November 13, 2006

11:30 a.m. International Law in the Domestic Courts of Other Nations

As the scope of international law has expanded in recent years through both treaty and custom, so too has its appearance in domestic courts around the globe. This panel will provide a comparative perspective on how international law is interpreted and applied by courts outside of the United States. Judges from common-law and civil-law traditions will discuss substantive and procedural issues related to the domestic incorporation of international law principles and international conventions in their jurisdictions, including the impact of regional instruments, such as the European Convention on Human Rights and the American Convention on Human Rights.

Moderator: Honorable Diane P. Wood, United States Court of Appeals, 7th Circuit

• Honorable Maria Teresa Zoppi de Caballero, National Judge, Argentina

• Honorable Justice Louis LeBel, Justice of the Supreme Court of Canada

• Kurt Riechenberg, Senior Legal Secretary, Court of Justice of the European Communities

...Kurt Riechenberg

Reference Materials

... Bibliography

Allan Rosas, With a Little Help from My Friends: International Case Law as a Source of Reference for EU Courts, 5 The Global Community YILJ 2005 (Vol. I) 203

Rosalyn Higgins, The ICJ, the ECJ and the Integrity of International Law, 52 International and Comparative Law Quarterly 1 (2003)

Christiaan Timmermans, The EU and Public International Law, 4 European Foreign Affairs Review 181 (1999)

Allan Rosas, The Relationship between EU Law and WTO Law in Light of Recent Developments of European Case Law, 3 The Global Community YILJ 2003 (Vol. II) 733

Lawrence Kogan, The Precautionary Principle and WTO Law: Divergent Views toward the Role of Science in Accessing and Managing Risk, 77 Seton Hall Journal of Diplomacy and International Relations (Winter/Spring 2004)

Catherine Turner, Human Rights Protection in the European Community: Resolving Conflict and Overlap Between the European Court of Human Rights, 5 European Public Law, 453 (1999)

Gil Carlos Rodríguez Iglesias, The Protection of Fundamental Rights in the Case Law of the Court of Justice of the European Communities, 1 Columbia Journal of European Law 169

Anthony Arnall, From Charter to Constitution and Beyond: Fundamental Rights in the New European Union, 2003 Public Law 774

Daniel Cassel, Does International Human Rights Law Make a Difference, 2001 Yale Law Journal 121

REPORTED ON THE WEBSITE OF:

<http://www.fjc.gov>

The

Federal

Judicial

Center

The Federal Judicial Center is the research and education agency of the federal judicial system. It was established by Congress in 1967 (28 U.S.C. §§ 620-629), on the recommendation of the Judicial Conference of the United States. The many specific statutory duties of the Center and its Board fall into a few broad categories:

- conducting and promoting orientation and continuing education and training for federal judges, court employees, and others;
- developing recommendations about the operation and study of the federal courts;
- conducting and promoting research on federal judicial procedures, court operations, and history.

... The Education Division plans and produces educational programs, services, and resources for judges and for nonjudicial court personnel, such as those in clerk's offices and probation and pretrial services offices. Its products include travel-based and in-court programs that participants attend in person, Web-based programs and publications, television programs broadcast by satellite, and manuals, monographs, and other print publications.