Presented By: Macomb County Historical Commissioners

In honor of the 100th anniversary company's founding (celebrated in 2008), General Motors (GM) was selected for this award. As one of Macomb County's largest employers, they were also noted for the economic well-being they have brought to our communities.

Preservation of their history is something that GM has is also committed to. The GM Heritage Center, located in Sterling Heights, houses one of the world's foremost collections of automobiles that are significant to the history of the automotive industry. The center also serves as an archive for thousands of documents, artifacts and memorabilia relating to GM's business. Furthermore, GM's Tech Center, in Warren, has been designated as a State of Michigan Historic Site and many of the buildings on the property continue to be maintained to their original historic charm and integrity.
