"It is crucial that we acknowledge the need in communities across the City of Los Angeles, particularly in these tough economic times. Investing in the future of the children in LA's BEST is imperative to help ensure a safer city and a better educated next generation," stated Lythgoe. "My thanks to Christopher Guy for joining me in supporting such an important program," he added.

The proceeds will benefit LA's BEST Designers of Tomorrow Workshop which is part of LA's BEST After School Arts Program (ASAP), created to ensure that participating children have access to quality art education programs. "Designing is a big part of my life and always has been since I
