

Tim Landry Memorial Scholarship

Tim Landry was a student at Thomas Jefferson who graduated with the class of 2008. For those of you who did not know him, Tim had a positive outlook and a solid work ethic. In the classroom, he quietly did a good job at any task he was given. When he participated in sports, Tim modeled sportsmanship and effort, cheering for his friends with as much enthusiasm as if he were himself the winner. Tim was never a star athlete, nor was he the top of his class, but he was a model of great effort and attitude – quietly inspiring all of his peers.

There are kids who give their all to everything they do, yet never seem to distinguish themselves from the pack. They are always in class. They always do their homework. They focus on being well-rounded, fearlessly trying different things – both sports and academics. They are supportive and attentive to their peers, and they are respectful of their teachers and coaches. They deserve notice. They are deserving of a scholarship in Tim's name.

We are seeking Seniors like Tim, with some or all of these qualities:

- Positive outlook
- Sports participant
- Asset to your class
- Lends a helping hand to peers

If you would like to be considered for this $2000 scholarship, please do the following:

- (1) For now, submit your name, email, and student number to Ms. Dickson in the College and Career Center by the Monday, March 15th deadline to declare your interest. Applications will be delivered to candidates following the nomination period.
- (2) Locate an academic staff person, or teacher, willing to write you a Letter of Recommendation during the application process.

We hope to notify winners in late April.

Thank you!
