MONTESSORI TEACHER ACADEMY

Founded in 1992 in Lake Forest, California, the Montessori Teacher Academy served the local community as the one and only Teacher Education Program in Orange County affiliated with the National Center for Montessori Education (NCME). In September 2003, the Teacher Education Program took residence in Dana Point, California using Monarch Bay Montessori Academy as its demonstration school. Monarch Bay Montessori Academy houses over one hundred families in the southern California area and serves children at the Early Childhood and Lower Elementary levels (2 ½ through 9 years). In June 2006, the Montessori Teacher Academy joined the American Montessori Society, AMS as it united forces with NCME to become the largest and strongest Montessori organization in the world.

The Montessori Teacher Academy provides a Teacher Education Program of the highest academic standards. Based on the Montessori principles, this training leads to a full understanding and embracing of the Montessori philosophy, curriculum and methodology. It guides the student in the planning, development and organization of the ideal classroom, a carefully prepared environment that speaks to the child's natural development of order, concentration, coordination, and independence. The student understands the rationale and sequence of the Montessori materials, becomes well versed in the knowledge and confident in the presentation of these purposeful activities to children. Above all, the Montessori Teacher Academy shares its feelings of love, respect and admiration for children as well as its commitment to create nurturing environments that speak to the education of the whole child.

Montessori Teacher Academy is located at 32920 Pacific Coast Highway in Dana Point, California in Monarch Bay Plaza, at the corner of Crown Valley and Pacific Coast Highway.

COURSE SYLLABUS

MONTESSORI PRINCIPLES AND PHILOSOPHY

Component Hours: 32 contact hours, 100 hours Independent Study, 3 units equivalent

Through a series of readings, lectures, class discussion, writing assignments, and evaluations this course component will discuss Maria Montessori's life, the beginning of the Montessori Method as developed by Maria Montessori in the early 1900's, its growth over the years, and the specifics of the Montessori Philosophy (i.e., absorbent mind, sensitive periods, logical-mathematical mind, spiritual and moral development of the child, etc.). It will also look at how the Montessori principles, materials, teacher, and environment relate to and respect the developing child from birth through 6 years.

CHILD DEVELOPMENT / CHILD, FAMILY, AND COMMUNITY

Component Hours: 32 contact hours, 100 hours Independent Study, 3 units equivalent

This section consists of a series of lessons dealing with the development patterns of young children. The major emphasis is on the intellectual and emotional development of children during the first six years of life. Major topics covered in this course component are the writings and philosophies of past and current theorists; current trends in family dynamics; and local community resources.

This section also looks at the interactions among children, family, school, peers, media, and community, with an emphasis on ethnic diversity, social class, gender roles, and their impact on behavior, values, morals, and attitudes.

EARLY CHILDHOOD OBSERVATION

Component Hours: 30 contact hours, 50 hours Independent Study, 3 units equivalent

This course component provides a framework for observation and reflection that promotes connections between theory and practice. The Observation component will help develop skills using direct observation as a primary tool for studying children and as an aid in developing teaching strategies tailored to individual needs and classroom dynamics. This course component requires independent study of a minimum of three 3-hour observations before the Internship begins. Six (6) additional 3-hour observations are completed during the Internship program. Additional hours are spent on observation of individual children. Observation techniques will be studied during the contact hours. Observation reports provide students with the preparation and practice for accurate, objective observation of children.

PRACTICAL LIFE

Component Hours: 32 contact hours, 20+ hours Independent Study, 3 units equivalent

In the Montessori classroom, young children are usually drawn first to the Daily Living /Practical Life area because these materials are most familiar to them. The exercises have objects and materials normally encountered in everyday living experiences such as cleaning, pouring, dressing, and polishing. The exercises of Practical Life/Daily Living fall into five major categories: Care of the Self; Care of the Environment; Grace and Courtesy; Control of Movement; and Food Preparation. Children need to master these fundamental exercises to live comfortably in the real adult world. These activities help the child develop coordination, concentration, a sense of personal independence, and a sense of order. Along with presenting the philosophy and rationale of the Practical Life /Daily Living area, this component covers information and lessons on classroom guidelines, courtesy, control of movement, care of the person, care of the environment, and food.

SENSORIAL

Component Hours: 32 contact hours, 20+ hours Independent Study, 3 units equivalent

The sensorial area consists of materials that educate and refine the children's senses. The child learns to recognize similarities and differences; to discriminate between similar objects; to grade similar objects. This is important for later mastery of tasks involving math and language. The primary purpose of the Sensorial exercises is not that their correct usage be mastered, but rather that "the child train himself to observe; that he be led to make comparisons between objects, to form judgments, to reason and to decide." (Dr. Maria Montessori - Dr. Montessori's Own Handbook)

The Sensorial materials are designed to simplify learning and awareness of the environment by: isolating the difficulty or quality to be discriminated; isolating the senses; encouraging mastery through repetition; possessing self-correction; and presenting an attractive appearance to the child. Children develop the organization and patterning skills that are inherent in math and language concepts.

This course component includes the philosophy and rationale of the Sensorial area and presentation of the sensorial materials aiding the development and refinement of the senses.

EARLY CHILDHOOD MATHEMATICS

Component Hours: 32 contact hours, 20+ hours Independent Study, 3 units equivalent

Montessori believed that a child's mind was mathematical and based on the order and perceptual awareness found in the development of the senses. The acquisition of mathematical principles is seen as developing logically from concrete to abstract and simple to complex. The child that has mastered the basic concepts involved with the Practical Life and Sensorial materials progresses naturally to the beginning Math activities.

This course component covers the Philosophy and rationale of the Montessori curriculum Math area and presentation of the Montessori math materials that aid in the development of Mathematical concepts and skills: introduction to numbers, counting, the decimal system, the four basic operations of the decimal system, memorization of facts, and fractions.

EARLY CHILDHOOD LANGUAGE ARTS

Component Hours: 32 contact hours, 20+ hours Independent Study, 3 units equivalent

Language development is of prime importance in the early childhood years. The Language Arts course component covers the philosophy and rationale of the Language area and its materials. Major topics covered are the materials and exercises that foster receptive and expressive language experiences, visual and auditory perceptual experiences, vocabulary development and enrichment along with reading and writing development: pre-writing exercises: metal insets, small muscles exercises; vocabulary cards, story reading, letter recognition games, sequencing activities, etc.; early writing exercises: tracing and writing individual letters; early reading exercises: sounds of individual letters, moveable alphabet to form words, object or picture classification to isolate individual vowel and consonant sounds; non phonetic words; blends; diagraphs; long vowel patterns; reading as a tool: word definition cards; grammar: noun, verb, adjective; writing simple sentences; writing poetry; and writing descriptions. Students will also learn skills in reading books to children using expression, intonation, inquiry and prediction.

SCIENCE AND SOCIAL STUDIES / ART AND MUSIC

Component Hours: 44 contact hours, 20+ hours Independent Study, 3 units equivalent

Along with the four main areas of the Montessori environment there are numerous other materials and activities available to the children. Maria Montessori believed that the classroom was a prepared environment for the development of the whole child. Therefore, areas such as art, music, science, geography, living animals and plants are to be included for the child. The role of the teacher is to expand the child's awareness. With careful preparation many new ideas and materials can be harmonized with the environment.

Physical and Life Science: Montessori's theory of the interrelated curriculum joins biology, history, science, and geography as holistic "Cosmic Education". Activities are demonstrated that focus on the characteristics, parts, and classification of plants and animals as well as simple science experiments that children can do independently. Students will become familiar with the Montessori presentations in these subject areas as they relate to contemporary educational thought.

Social Studies: Montessori's theory of the interrelated curriculum joins biology, history, science, and geography as holistic "Cosmic Education". History, geography are explored in this course component under the general category of Social Studies. Students will become familiar with the Montessori presentations in these subject areas through study of globes, landforms, puzzle maps, flags, timelines, and the concept of time.

Art: The art component links Montessori concepts with the creative arts using materials available in schools. The course component highlights various media, line and spatial concepts along with art history. This program utilizes a process-based approach.

Music and Movement: Music and Movement are demonstrated that are appropriate for children ages three to six. The course component emphasizes body awareness and line activities, finger plays, and action games, components of musical form, music appreciation exercises, along with standard Montessori Music materials.

CLASSROOM LEADERSHIP / ENVIRONMENTAL DESIGN

Component Hours: 34 contact hours, 20 hours Independent Study, 3 units equivalent

This course component covers strategies of classroom leadership that gain the child's confidence, cooperation and attention, thereby helping to develop a pattern of respect for authority. Environmental design techniques that can be applied to the physical environment and their application to classroom management are also discussed.

Classroom Leadership is a vital part of any good teacher Education Course. To be an effective and successful teacher, techniques in communication with the individual child, a small group of children and the entire class must be learned; along with skill at evaluating the role the environment is playing in the child's behavior must be evaluated.

Beginning classrooms must be brought from the un-normalized condition to normalization by the teacher's careful direction and guidance. Un-normalized children do not spontaneously discover constructive work in the environment, but must be drawn to the work by the teacher's careful preparation and planning.

EARLY CHILDHOOD PRACTICUM

Component Hours: a minimum of 540 contact hours, 60 hours Independent Study, 6 units equivalent

The function of the Practicum Phase is to provide the trainee with the opportunity for personal and practical experiences in a teaching/learning experience as an Early Childhood Montessori teacher with children ages 2 ½ through 6 year age. It also provides a period of observation, internalization, and further study, to bring together the theory and practice of Montessori education. This course is intended to allow the student time to experiment with teaching the cosmic lessons, develop new curriculum materials, as well as manage the daily routines of an early childhood classroom. The environment must be prepared with materials and modes of activities that respond to the developmental and varied needs and interests of the Early Childhood student. It is the trainee's responsibility to procure an Early Childhood Practicum teaching placement in an approved Montessori school, which agrees to cooperate with the Montessori Teacher Training Center in all matters relating to the practicum.
