

Bumps In The Road

Rachael Martin 2,19,2020

My daughter was hurt by adults today. She did nothing wrong. I've cried with her and for her almost all night. I've been praying that the Lord would hold her and show her peace and how to forgive and how to love through it. It baffles how much people truly dislike confrontation and avoid it no matter the cost. I know I can be in my bubble sometimes and I really do wish Jesus would return but I also have another side of me that wants to help others when I see a need and I want to scream out how much Jesus loves someone when I see people hurting and lost.

The only comfort I could give her was that Jesus KNEW He would be betrayed yet He still kept Judas close and discipled him and loved him. I told her that God was not surprised by any of this and that we truly need to believe and hope for a positive outcome. My hope is that we can look back on this and see where God steered us into His purpose. It doesn't take the hurt away but it brings a measure of peace.

Friends I pray for you all reading this that you find peace if you are in the storm. I pray that you find purpose in what you are working through and I pray that God would hold you and keep your heart in His hand and that His love would win. In Jesus name, Amen.

© 2020 www.gatheringathisfeet.org

EMAIL: GINA@gatheringathisfeet.org