Additional information:

Santa Cruz is the largest of the islands in Channel Island National Park. There are scenic hiking trails, colorful tide pools, and a variety of plants and animals. It will be possible to photograph both the endemic (seen nowhere else on earth) Santa Cruz Island Fox and Island Scrub Jay during the visit. Marine animals can often be seen during transit to and from the mainland.

The island is exceptionally rich in cultural history and remnants of the ranching era can also be seen and photographed on your visit.

Participants need to have breakfast before arriving at Island Packers at 8AM and need to bring easy to carry items to eat during the day, e.g., nutritional bars, fruit, nuts, etc.

Potable water is available in the campground area. Participants need to bring water and/or a refillable water bottle.

Picnic tables are in the Visitor Center area. There will be a planned stop for "lunch" when appropriate during the day.

Vault style restrooms are located near the beach and there are two restrooms in the campground.
