Designated learning institutions list

To apply for a study permit, you need an acceptance letter from a designated learning institution. A designated learning institution is a school approved by a provincial or territorial government to host international students.

All primary and secondary schools in Canada are designated learning institutions. They aren't included in this list.

If you plan to attend a post-secondary school, make sure it is on this list.

- i If the school you are studying at loses its designated learning institution status after you get your study permit, you can:
- keep studying your program until your current permit expires,
 - but only renew your study permit if you enrol at a designated learning institution.

Post-graduation work permit

You need to know if you are eligible to work after you graduate. Not all designated learning institutions make you eligible for the Post-Graduation Work Permit Program.

Along with graduating from an eligible designated learning institution, you need to meet all other criteria to get a post-graduation work permit.

The list below will let you know if your designated learning institution offers programs that will make you eligible for a post-graduation work permit.

List of designated learning institutions by province/territory

Step 1: Choose the province or territory your school is in.

Step 2: Type in keywords such as the name of the school, city, etc.

Step 3: Find the designated learning institution number and write it under the section Details of intended study in Canada on your study permit application.
