JAMES THURMAN: ANCIENT 21ST CENTURY ARTIFACTS

In the spirit of ancient 21st Century museum exhibitions and for the education and benefit of all Citizen-Consumers, the McMuseum of Anthropological Archaeology has produced this Glossary. The following is archaic language that has now become obsolete:

Books: a way of packaging "paper" to make it less hazardous. By capturing hundreds of pieces of the same size together, it was far less likely to injure the user.

By Hand: a dangerous ancient custom of attempting to individually create objects using primitive implements.

Dollar: a primitive localized unit of exchange whose value was determined by scarcity of precious metals. Since it was not globally accepted and regulated like the current Credit, it fostered divisive strife and "military" conflict.

Flatware: weapon-like tools used to attack food as part of a ritualized hunt, tear the food apart, and insert it into the mouth. Used in conjunction with "plates." All made unnecessary through the proper design and packaging of food.

Free: a dangerous and subversive concept. An ancient custom of exchanging goods without any apparent Price. As We all know, nothing is Free so the ultimate price extracted for the exchange was often very deceptive and the cause of violence and Chaos.

Military: Before the Global Unification sponsored by the TransWorld Corporation, scarcity of Products forced large mobs of Citizens to violently attack each other. Thankfully, our Customer Service Representatives are always available to help any Citizen-Consumer with any need.

Outlet: Many items, such as a "plug" were inserted into this electrical access point. Also used by children in games used to eliminate those not fit for survival.

Paper: a wasteful and hazardous thin flat material with sharp edges made from chewed trees.

Plate: a ritual object used to transport and present food before consuming. Made obsolete by McFood, which is now properly designed and packaged.

Plug: a mystical amulet at end of a "wire" that was inserted into an "outlet" to continue the restricted flow of electricity. Perhaps also part of a fertility ritual within this repressed culture.

Printing: pouring colored liquids onto the surface of "paper", staining it in the shapes of numbers and letters

Recycle: a desperate and disgusting ancient ritual of continuing to use Products beyond their Expiration Date. Many Citizens were poisoned by this practice and slowly went insane, attempting to Reduce their Consumption, leading to global financial ruin (see WEEP).

Thrown Away: ancient barbaric practice of burying used Products underground in the hopes that they would be Atomically Reassigned™ through the Valero ART (Atomic Reassignment Technology™).

Trash: before the Valero ART (Atomic Reassignment Technology™), a Product past its Expiration Date (see Thrown Away)

Video: before the universal adoption of Pfizer me-Bots[™] (microscopic enriching Biologically Optimized Technology Service), recorded moving images were shown by inserting large plastic coins into viewing kinsks
