

Truths vs. Truth

Truths are doors
and windows;
Truth is the mansion.
Truths are road signs;
Truth is the landscape.

We harbor
truths,
but inhabit
Truth.

We perceive
truths,
but pursue
Truth.

We hold truths,
but must be
possessed by Truth.

We entertain truths,
but should be
enthralled by Truth.

Truths assist you
to see;
Truth helps you
to be.
Truths increase your
knowledge;
Truth engenders
wisdom.

We are smug about
truths in hand;
we can never, however,
contain Truth.

We acquire truths
by activity;
we receive Truth
as a gift.

Some of our truths
are false
and should be
replaced;
only Truth
is pure
and should be revered.
