Young dancers attended a series of classes taught by Ranjana Warier as part of a community program with the town of Davie. The dances explored the history of India; all costumes were the colors of the Indian flag, and all music/dances were patriotic, instrumental or folk. Left, Samira Samuel, 6, left, and Riya Jacob, 5, show off their costumes. Jasmine Thomas, 10, gets some help from her aunt, Gracy Joseph, as they prepare for their final performance. Kathy Laskowski a Sun Sentinel employee.
