

Journal of Social Science & Allied Health Professions

Journal homepage: www.ssahp.com | ISSN: 2397-2696

Editorial

C.M. Hayre *

*chris.hayre@gmail.com

Published Online: 10th April 2019.
www.ssahp.com

On behalf of the editorial board we are pleased to be continuing the dissemination of transnational research/positional papers pertinent to the social sciences. In this issue there are key concepts linked to declarative mapping sentences, which aims to establish a framework of enhancing health and well-being of individuals. We are also pleased to welcome papers exploring the employability of young people with autism spectrum disorders, possibility of grade inflation within radiography education and a psychological study aiming to build a positive body image via a body positivity programme.

As an editorial team we are continually grateful to reviewers, as without them, we would be failing to offer peer review appraisals of manuscripts. In short, then, we are delighted that the Journal of Social Sciences & Allied Health Professions continues to welcome and publish scholarly work from various parts of the world and we certainly welcome, and look forward to receiving high quality manuscripts in the future.

Dr. Christopher M Hayre
Editor-in-Chief: Journal of Social Science & Allied Health Professions.