

THE COMPARATIVE ECONOMICS OF POLITICAL PHILOSOPHY

PRODUCTION POLICY

Factors of Production

Nature Sourced

Human Sourced

Land/Resources

Capital

Labor

Policy outcome may differ from stance.
 Note: All systems are capitalistic (i.e. use capital in production).
 Differentiating features include adherence to justice and the non-aggression principle.

											Policy Stance
												Yes
												No
												In Part
Neglect of ancient commoner entitlements to natural endowments	Upholds private title grants by law without remedial ground-rent fee or tax	Neglect of essential allocative economic function of private titles	Inefficient centralized non-market control and management	Burdensome taxation of buildings and improvements	Counterproductive Capital gains taxes	Growth of bureaucratic state.	Oligarchic regulatory favoritism	Annulment of emergent public choice in currency (i.e. precious metals) by fiat	Lack of regard for negative ramifications of wage/price controls	Major tax disincentives for worker and entrepreneur productive effort	Barriers to employment from licensure, minimum wage, victimless crime laws			FEUDALISM
														FASCISM
														SOCIALISM
														PROGRESSIVISM
														CONSERVATISM
														CLASSICAL LIBERALISM
														LIBERTARIANISM
														GEO-LIBERTARIANISM

© 2017 James A. Webb. Permission hereby granted for reproduction with credit to source. See more on economics at depiconomics.com