"That's when it all fell into place. I had a chance to get my head back in the game."

St. Andrew's Children's Clinic is located in Sonoita, Ariz., and is open to the public. The clinic provides care for children with disabilities, and they have in recent years, there have been upwards of 200 kids coming through each month for care.

"We have kids from all over the country," said Kelli Mathews, the clinic's administrative coordinator. "They come from all walks of life. It doesn't matter what your background is, everyone who comes here gets what they need."

More than 200 kids have been served by St. Andrew's Children's Clinic in the past year, according to Mathews.

"It's been a very busy year," she said. "We have kids coming from all over the country, and we're just trying to keep up with the demand."

The clinic provides a variety of services, including physical therapy, occupational therapy, and speech therapy. They also offer a variety of educational programs, such as Braille classes and sign language classes.

"We try to provide the best services we can," Mathews said. "We want to make sure our kids have the best possible chance to succeed."
