

Paul Blizzard ▸ VietnamWarHistoryOrg ...

Follow · 14 hrs · 🌐

"How are you, GI Joe?"

"Trinh Thi Ngo, who has died aged 85, was, for a generation of American troops serving in Indochina, better known as 'Hanoi Hannah', the silken-voiced propagandist on North Vietnamese radio, the Voice of Vietnam, who tried to convince GIs, in impeccable English, that they should lay down their arms and go home."

"She claimed not to have felt any hatred towards the American people and later life expressed the hope that she might one day visit the land of her former enemies: 'San Francisco has always been a dream. And the Golden Gate Bridge and Hollywood, I'd love to see them, too.'" Obituary UK Telegraph 16 OCTOBER 2016

Trinh Thi Ngo's broadcasts lasted from 1965 until the end of the war.

She died, September 30, 2016

Photo CREDIT: AFP PHOTO/STRSTR/AFP/GETTY-
My entire collection of Vietnam War "Then and Now" photos are available for viewing at:
www.instagram.com/paulblizzardinvietnam/

