

Along with being an entrepreneur, Stewart has over 20 years of operations experience in a variety of manufacturing settings. He began his career in Supply Chain Management before moving into Operations and Finance positions. Stewart has a proven background in turnaround and change management, utilizing lean manufacturing principles. He is currently the Vice President of Operations for US Cargo Systems, a provider of cargo handling systems for both the Military and Commercial aircraft markets. Stewart earned his Bachelor's in Business Administration and Master of Business Administration from East Carolina University. He is also a certified Lean Six Sigma Black Belt.