Christ Lutheran Church Newsletter

Aloha Kakou,

A blessed and joyous Easter to all. I've been thinking much lately about Cross and Resurrection. The two go together as part of one dramatic story of God in Christ's identification with broken, lost and sinful humanity and Jesus' representation to God of our plight. It is a story of loss and recovery, death and resurrection, betrayal and forgiveness, hopelessness and redemption.

Last Sunday, Easter Sunday, I changed up the ending of my Keiki Story – from "...and they lived ... happily ever after" to "...and they lived ... joyfully ever after." Joy is promised is scripture, repeatedly. Happiness is rarely, if ever – and I can't think of one place it is – offered.

Happiness cannot comprehend Cross, that is, loss, brokenness or betrayal. It is what I call "cheery, cheesy optimism." It is pervasive and insidious throughout our culture.

Joy, on the other hand, can speak to the deep uncertainty and ambiguity of our busy, hectic, and stress-filled lives. Joy is a kind of delight, somber and sober, yet determined and deep. A delight in life, even in the midst of death, of hope in the midst of despair, of faith in the midst of doubt. Joy is what Christ offers us in the Cross and Resurrection story. In spite of every-thing that comes our way, we trust, we hope, and we love. We take spontaneous yet substantive delight in our lives, our families, our communities of faith and our (God's?) creation.

Sometimes I think we ought to sing "Joy to the World" not on Christmas but on Easter. Easter is God's joyful Word to us, even the in midst of Crosses.

A joyful Easter season to you all!

People living with loss, struggling with illness or injury, or those who find themselves isolated are growing in our community every day. When people find themselves in these circumstances, they need others who will be present, listen and offer spiritual care. Institutions and agencies cannot meet the growing community needs. Congregations have always been centers for healing and support. Preparing members to meet the growing community challenges is vital in meeting these needs.
