SAFETY POLICY

We believe, “that there is no such thing as a zero risk environment and that the key is to think the job through and manage the hazard, rather than to thoughtlessly push through, hoping for no incidents. Perfect safety can be attained through alertness and though as we work to reduce the hazards and barriers to excellence....”.

“....safety is not in competition for priority against profit, quality, or other performance objectives, but will be considered as a necessary ingredient in all of them. Safety is considered as a part of doing any job right, not as an added consideration after the task is planned. It is part of the key ingredients, not an addition to the completed product.

TRAINING

We understand that training is crucial to raising awareness of issues around Health, Safety, and our Environment. As part of our onboarding and on-going training processes, employees and contractors are provided a copy of Lindinger's HSE Manual and are asked to acknowledge receipt and understanding. This Policy is also posted to Lindinger's website.
