

Staying Alive

Rachael Martin 11,3,2017

Don't ya just love the Bee Gees? Hard to find that high voice in a male singer anymore...

ANYWHO... I wanted to take a minute to share with you all the importance of staying alive to the things that are NOT OF THIS WORLD.

I know if y'all had a week at all like what I had – we can look back and say -“ok, what just happened and where did the time go?”

I pray RIGHT NOW in the Mighty Name of Jesus for all of those reading this including myself to gain a fresh hunger for the Lord, for His Word and for His presence. May we all be so repulsed by anything that goes against the nature of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ – because Saints, if we aren't, than we can very easily start to blur our boundaries and motives.

Every Thursday, I get away from the house by MYSELF and I go to work 45 minutes away and I work almost the whole day away from everything and everyone I love. It's healthy – my girls sometimes ask if they can go with mommy and I say – TRUST ME – we will all love each other if I do this! LOL Mind you, I'm never more than a phone call (or text) away but I am away from the things that drain my attention and it allows others to figure things out without me. I used to get this with the ladies fellowship once a month back in VA. (no tears... sniff sniff)

Everyone needs a healthy break away from the norm to be with the Lord, to catch up on you time, to break the cycle of everyday – every minute – demands that this life can bring. A minute to just breathe! I'm reminded of the Song – “Come Away with Me” – friends, the Lord is constantly knocking, HE NEVER GIVES UP and even when we are alone and taking a time out, He's waiting. He's that friend – that even when you haven't talked much to Him, you can rely on picking up just where you left off.... Wow... what a love..... and He will help our spirits to remain alive and alert.

© 2017 www.gatheringathisfeet.org

EMAIL: gina@gatheringathisfeet.org