About Us

Who We Are

The Realm of Caring Foundation is a nonprofit organization based in Colorado Springs, Colorado. We have 15 full and part time staff members supporting over 25,000 clients throughout the U.S. and the world. Meet our national team here.

What We Do

We improve lives through Research, Education, and Advocacy. By funding and conducting Research, we learn more about cannabis and its applications. Education empowers consumers to select the best products for their individual needs, and informs healthcare professionals about options for their patients. Through Advocacy, we spread the truth about cannabis and expand access to those in need. Read more about What We Do here.

Why?

Because Quality of Life Matters!

Everyone has a right to the best quality of life possible. In many cases, cannabinoid therapy has improved life quality for those suffering from a variety of ailments. It may be as simple as a child smiling for the first time, or as momentous as cancer remission or seizure freedom. These five words guide every action at Realm of Caring, and inspire us to greater achievements.

"I know the discussion around this topic will no doubt get heated. I have felt that heat. But I feel a greater responsibility than ever to make sure those heated discussions are also well-informed by science."

Dr. Sanjay Gupta

History

The Realm of Caring Foundation was informally established by the Stanley Brothers, Paige Figi, and Heather Jackson. Paige's daughter, Charlotte, and Heather's son, Zaki, were the first two success stories using Charlotte's Web™ in early 2012. After receiving several inquiries from families seeking help around the world, the group recognized the need to create a formal organization to not only collect research and data on individuals using cannabis products, but to also educate and advocate about this often-misunderstood form of therapy.

The Stanleys have since transitioned away from the Realm of Caring to focus their efforts on production and new product development. Paige has fulfilled a needed legislative role serving as Executive Director of Coalition for Access Now, a 501c4 organization committed to educating the public and lawmakers on the health benefits associated with natural therapies derived from cannabis for chronic health conditions. Heather is serving as the Chief Executive Officer of the Realm of Caring, a 501c3 entity.

The Realm of Caring Foundation was formally established on 8/13/13, and has received its 501c3 designation as a recognized non-profit entity. We continue with the same mission and vision that we always have. Our advocacy work has been featured in media outlets across the country including the New York Times, Wall Street Journal, Time, NBC, and two CNN specials hosted by Dr. Sanjay Gupta.

Research is one of our primary objectives. That's why we've partnered with experienced researchers at the Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine to update our successful Observational Research Registry (ORR). During its first year, our Epilepsy ORR became the largest study to collect information about cannabinoid therapy and its effects on seizures and quality of life. With funding from RoC and our generous supporters, the Johns Hopkins team will evaluate the initial data while improving and expanding the registry for future data collection. We're ecstatic to learn more about what works for our clients and how their lives have changed while using cannabis therapies.

Our new ORR captures information about those with Epilepsy, Cancer, Autoimmune Disorder, Neurological Disorder, Neuropsychiatric Disorder, Behavioral Disorder, Chronic Pain, and other conditions. Whether you are currently using cannabinoid therapies or not, your input will be invaluable to other families, doctors, and researchers. We also plan to use the anonymized data in support of cannabis legislation. It's difficult for lawmakers to argue with hard data!
