

Gould Residence

JB Fieldworks collaborated with Studio B Architecture to site a home and drive that take advantage of spectacular mountain views and the unique character of the wooded site.

The chosen site for the home allows for a limited footprint on the landscape. The simple cantilevering form allows the natural landform to flow uninterrupted. The home transitions gracefully between two natural plateaus. One accommodating a lower level arrival court and one an upper level private outdoor room.

The alignment of the road was chosen to heighten ones sense of arrival. The drive moves gracefully through a wooded bowl before rising to the ridge and presenting spectacular views of the home and mountain beyond. Special consideration was given to protecting neighbors from wayward headlights.
