

Jeffrey Major is a Personal Financial Counselor for the 10th SFG (A) providing professional personal finance support to group members and their families on active duty and reserve status.

He coordinates key resource facilitators and delivers personal financial services through:

- Face-to-Face financial counseling: To support and educate individual and families to help address specific needs, including provision of appropriate resource materials.
- Financial Planning workshops: Facilitate workshops with approximately designed to promote awareness and educate service members and their families on various personal finance topics.
- Resource Referrals: Provide additional resources through community relationships to provide appropriate resources on all areas of personal finance.

Jeffrey served in the US Army as an attack helicopter pilot during the Cold War. He left the Army in 1993 after 10 years at the rank of CW3. Jeffrey also served as a TAC officer at the Warrant Officer Candidate School in Fort Rucker AL and an Aviation Maintenance officer for the 377th Medical Company in Korea. Jeffrey completed his Bachelor of Science Degree with Embrey Riddle Aeronautical University while on Active Duty.