GROENLANDIA

es una enorme isla y territorio danés autónomo entre los océanos Atlántico Norte y Ártico. Gran parte de su superficie territorial está cubierta de hielo. La mayor parte de su pequeña población vive en la costa sin hielo rodeada de fiordos, particularmente en el suroeste. Su posición en el norte, en gran parte por sobre el círculo polar ártico, genera fenómenos naturales como el sol de medianoche en verano y la aurora boreal en invierno.

ISLANDIA es un país insular nórdico que se caracteriza por su espectacular paisaje de volcanes, géiseres, aguas termales y campos de lava.

- Cuenta con enormes glaciares protegidos y su población vive principalmente en Reykjavík, que se abastece de energía geotérmica y alberga el Museo Nacional y el Museo de Saga, que recorren la historia vikinga de Islandia.
- Algunos grandes atractivos de la isla: Sus geisers y Golden Circle

A wide-angle aerial photograph of a deep, narrow fjord in Norway. The water is a vibrant blue-green. On the right side, a massive, steep mountain face is covered in lush green forests at the base, transitioning to rocky cliffs higher up. A large, multi-tiered waterfall cascades down the cliff face. In the distance, more fjords and mountains are visible under a bright, slightly cloudy sky.
