On the Way to Canmore and Banff

From Calgary, Alberta, Canada

While in Calgary .....

Canmore and Banff are less than two hours' drive west (80 miles) on Highway 1 (Trans-Canada Highway), so why not discover Calgary on the banks of the Bow River before making the leisurely drive to Canmore? A good place to start your exploration of Calgary is Calgary Tower. Built and opened in 1968, the tower is 626 feet high and remains the city's undisputed vantage point offering breathtaking 360-degree views. Grab lunch at the revolving Panorama Dining room before heading to the Glenbow Museum, Western Canada's largest museum and home to nearly 30,000 artworks and artifacts. If that is not enough history for you, visit Heritage Park Historic Village, a faithful recreation of pre-1914 prairie pioneer days featuring more than 150 buildings and 45,000 exhibits. Plenty of shopping can be had in Calgary before hitting the road. First visit Canada's second-largest Chinatown, established in 1910. Set in antiquated contrast to Calgary's modern skyline, the district bubbles with activity in its unique shops and restaurants. The Eau Claire Festival Market, Calgary's premiere shopping attraction, is not far away.

Head west on Highway 1 toward Canmore ...

Canmore is about an hour and fifteen minutes by car. For a very scenic drive, take Highway 1A (Bow River Valley Parkway) out of Calgary to the west toward Banff. The route is known for its breathtaking views and wildlife. You'll likely have time to reconnect to Highway 1 at Canmore and continue on to the town of Banff, in the middle of Banff National Park. Near the town's Upper Hot Springs, enjoy a historic spa and bath house noted for its healing waters. Catch the Banff Gondola, an eight-minute ride to spectacular views of the Canadian Rockies at nearly 7,500 feet above sea level. In town, get a first-hand account at the Buffalo Nations Museum of how First Nations people followed buffalo into the Bow Valley and packed their lives behind them on travois. The Banff Information Centre can guide you to the park's Victorian-era Banff Park Museum National Historic Site, Western Canada's oldest natural history museum that houses carefully preserved specimens of the park's fauna. A hands-on discovery room delights kids and adults alike.

From Banff, continue on Highway 1A ...

Head toward the little hamlet of Lake Louise and its otherworldly alpine waters, or venture north along Icfields Parkway to Columbia Icefield. Comprising six major glaciers that feed the Pacific, Arctic and Atlantic oceans, it is one of only two "hydrological apexes" in the world.

Head back toward Canmore on Highway 1 ...

The folks at the Canmore Museum and Geoscience Center are more than happy to help you trace the town's railway and coal mining history. And true to its pioneer legacy, the Northwest Mounted Police Barracks, built in 1892, still stands to remind Canmore residents that bootlegging was rather frowned upon at one time. Have tea in the small garden out back before heading to your resort.
