

My arrows' favorite color is blue not yellow.

Damn recoil, I shouldn't have used a high-caliber arrow.

I was aiming at the other target

I don't have enough triggers on my release

There was a gravity surge...

My bow-sight has Myopia

I did it on purpose.

My left arm said shoot but my right said stop!

It was a ten all the way till it hit the eight.

It went exactly where I aimed it!

My sight marks are always different when I get to a tournament.

The target face is too small!

My arrow slipped off the rest. I guess that greasing your arrows for more speed has a down side.

X-10's are too expensive to telescope every shot.

The brain said let go and my fingers said "who me? "

Hey, my groupings are just fine .. The targets in the wrong place

Really my release use to be excellent, but i lost my fingers in a skating accident this morning...

I have faith in my ability to hit the target, unfortunately it's not shared by my arrows

A tight group might damage my arrows.

It was so cold, the nock froze to the string.

It was a good shot until it got to the target

I don't want to waste paper so I'm using the entire target.

"My arrows are straight, it's my EYE'S that are bent".!!

My dealer sold me left hand arrows and I am a right hand shooter

I closed the wrong eye while aiming

The arrow went through the target