

NANCY PISTILLI has been dancing since she was 3, and has been teaching dance for almost that long!

She studied tap, ballet, and jazz with Texie Waterman in Dallas until she graduated from high school. Then she went off to college to take more dance and theater classes; upon her return to Dallas, she taught for Texie until she closed her studio. She has taught at many dance studios in the area, but it was while teaching at High Society that she met Melissa Glasgow and Kimberly Hancock. Nancy is honored to now be working for them at XD2!

Nancy stays busy teaching, choreographing and directing at theaters in the DFW area, such as Mesquite Community Theater, Garland Civic Theater, Plano Repertory Theater, Pocket Sandwich Theater, and Irving Community Theater. She also worked at Long Lake Camp for the Arts in upstate New York.

She teaches all ages and levels, but enjoys working with little ones the best. Nancy hopes to instill a love of dance and music in her students, and is proud to be a part of their growing up years.
