Housed in an historic former Federal Post Office building in the city of Massillon, Ohio, the museum provides an excellent setting for permanent exhibits of stock market artifacts and memorabilia, art and many thousands of books.

The museum is the result of Rodney G. Klein's vision of providing an atmosphere where the public can enrich their knowledge of the history of the stock market, finance, banking and economics.

Enjoy exploring the many rooms containing Wall Street artifacts; ticker tape machines, posters, movies, games, art.

A reading room is available to quietly peruse the library books which include topics such as investing, mutual funds, travel, novels, transportation and sports.
