

This is a picture of the barn as we showed it in our first post. It was needing some attention.

This is the barn now.

Before and After

Changes to the building:

Gravel pad added

Holes patched

New metal added

Roof leaks patched

Lights added

Junk cleared

We finally got to ripping out the rest of the inside...there was some bad wood here. This was the last bit. Surprisingly, there was a lot that was ok.

All done with the demo. It was a lot more work than we figured.

Now we start with the racking. This is Anabel putting in the safety bolts, so the beams don't pop off if someone hits them.

Quality Control checking behind
Dennis. Safety first!

We hung two lights as one was just not enough. We now have 10,000 lumens of light.

All Done!

Since we call our lumber yard behind the fence Lowes, we are going to call this Home Depot. So, if we tell you a tool is at Home Depot, you know where it is.
