Wednesday, January 10th

Program and Show and Share: 1:00-3:00 p.m.

National Avenue Christian Church
1515 South National Ave.

4:00-5:30 pm: Reception at Sky Gallery (see below)

Our featured Speaker is Robert Kraft, fine art photographer

Subject: The Principles of Composition

Understanding What Really Matters

(it's not about the rule of thirds)

Members and guests are invited to “show and share” their art.

Reception: 4:00-5:30 p.m. there will be an Artist's Reception at Sky Gallery (Springfield-Branson International Airport) for all members and the public hosted by The Springfield Regional Arts Council. Everyone is encouraged to carpool from the church to the airport. Invite your friends!

Our featured speaker, Robert will provide a review of several principles of composition that are relevant to all visual artists, painters and photographers alike. His presentation will include principles deemed valid not only from his own experience, but included in books and seminars from noted painters and photographers. Robert will recommend two books he believes contain the best advice on composition; one authored by a modern day master painter and another book from an acclaimed fine art photographer.

His presentation will include a critique of several images, some good and some not so good, that include examples of the compositional principles discussed. After Robert guides you through some examples you will be given the opportunity to conduct your own critiques of the compositional elements of some additional images and the opportunity to ask questions.

Robert shared: "While I have done some drawing and painting, my main interest is in Photography as Fine Art. I am drawn to floral and botanical subjects that I photograph both outdoors and in studio. I also enjoy photographing the great outdoors in the Ozarks."
