1	Planning template is required, lesson plans are optional.
2	We are not required to submit lesson plans but we are expected to create a planning template that sometimes is 6 pages long. This planning template lays out standards, learning intentions, success criteria, teaching resources, and an overall view of what we will be doing in our classes for the two following weeks.
3	yes
4	Required lesson plans are often extremely lengthy and repetitive, frequently duplicating what teachers already include in their personal lesson plans. I suggest that administrators allow teachers to submit their own lesson plans, provided they include all required components. This approach would promote teacher creativity and autonomy, reduce unnecessary workload, and ultimately result in more meaningful and engaging lessons for students.

1	Not teachers. Support staff supports for dismissal.
2	Duties are on a rotating schedule and are minimal.
3	NA
4	Classroom teachers have before school yard duty about once every 4-6 weeks. There are usually a lot of staff members outside at the time, so there are very few problems.

Q31 Do you have any final comments, thoughts, or concerns about PBIS, Discipline, and/or Site Atmosphere?

Answered: 6 Skipped: 7

#	RESPONSES
1	Some student behavior is incredibly disruptive daily and it consistently impedes on the learning in the classroom. If I could make any changes to staffing, it would be to have more BIS to be able to handle the amount of undesired behavior better.
2	There are a lot of support staff to help admin with discipline and behavior support. There is a huge need for that at this school site, not due to lack of procedures, or actions on admins part, but because there are many students in need of SEL support, discipline, etc.
3	Our Vice Principal and Campus Supervisor are very strong. They don't reward bad behavior by passing out stickers, candy, etc. They regularly contact parents and communicate well with the teachers.
4	Often times, I hear teachers complaining about their day, whether it be about students or administration and it gets annoying and bring down the positive mood.
