A Crossroads Cover Letter

As we stand before this most important decision:

A wise man will see the potential, incorporate the knowledge, respect the skill, encourage the desire and appreciate the willingness of the individual leader to shepherd the weak through the tyranny of evil. A foolish man will seek a shallow fault, dig into its deepest crack, plant more destruction and push further into the depths of what is only their own destructive potential, somehow raising himself to a false sense of greater power, leaving many the sheep to die, scattering the flock of the children already confused, and give even more glory to the leader....of evil men.

May we seek deepest the good in each other, use all of our experience to understand, have the compassion, strength and honor to see and feel all situations, find and give first every opportunity to our fellow men, women and children....to shine.
