

Protect your income – the asset you rely on most

Your income helps pay for everyday living expenses, but it also gives you the freedom to do the things you love. Make sure that doesn't change – even if your health or ability to work does.

What is income protection?

Income protection is insurance that pays you benefits, like a “paycheck,” if you can't work because of illness or injury.

You can use these payments to pay for the big and little things in life.

Do you really need it?

You may be surprised at the chances of becoming too sick or hurt to work. Illnesses and injuries can happen to anyone, anywhere, anytime.

Disabilities happen more often than you may think.

1 in 4 of today's 20-year-olds will become disabled before they retire.¹

Typically, the reason people can't work is because of illnesses, like cancer and strokes, rather than injuries.²

How much does income protection cost?

Using disability insurance to protect your income can be budget-friendly.

Individual disability income insurance is typically just 1-3% of what you earn.

To put that in perspective, in a month, that's less than:

A daily cup of coffee

A date night

Buying lunch every day

A smartphone bill

Take comfort in knowing you'll be able to maintain your current lifestyle no matter what life brings. Talk to your financial professional today.

What happens if you do become too sick or hurt to work?
